

Area Loss
Uncertain
In Roads
Measure

Missouri State Highway Commission officials are presently uncertain how much federal money involved in more than $25 million worth of road projects slated for Pettis County might be held in abeyance by the government until Missouri updates its billboard legislation.

According to district engineer George Satterlee, nine projects are proposed for Pettis County, including four on Highway 50 and three on Highway 65.

Included in Pettis County is work to widen and resurface two miles of Highway 50 between the Johnson County line and LaMonte, $328,000; dual lane construction on 4.4 miles of Highway 50 between LaMonte and Dresden, $3,172,000; dual lane construction on 6.2 miles of Highway 50 between Dresden and Sedalia's west city limits, $5,740,000; and three-tenths of a mile of four-lane undivided pavement east from the west city limits, $176,000.

Projects on Highway 65 include 5.4 miles of dual lane construction from Route J south to Route HH, $4,638,000; 4.8 miles of dual lane construction south from Sedalia beyond Route F, $4,851,000; plus an additional 6.2 miles of dual lane construction from south of Route F beyond the Pettis-Benton County line, $3,462,000.

Another major project concerns $2,864,000 for single lane construction north from Dresden on Route T to proposed ABM defense facilities. The final project is on Route RB at the northern edge of the county, providing $52,000 of single lane construction leading to the Marshall Junction Wildlife Area.

Bringing Missouri laws into line with federal billboard requirements is currently drawing the attention of the Missouri Senate, which is considering a bill approved earlier in committee. Updating the billboard legislation is one of several "must" actions required of the General Assembly, which neglected proper action on the measure during its 76th session last year.

The federal government warned Missouri in late 1971 that federal assistance would be withheld if the state didn't effect complying legislation. The state managed to borrow time, receiving a March 31 deadline within which to act.

However, last week 10 per cent of federal funds allotted to Missouri, or $11.5 million, were withheld effective immediately until compliance was made.

A highway commission spokesman said Tuesday that Missouri received about $110 million a year in federal funds to augment $200 million in gas tax and vehicle registration monies. The spokesman was unable to indicate, however, how much federal money might be withheld from county projects should complying legislation not pass.

"We operate on a basis of using available funds when contracts are ready to be let," he explained. "For instance, some sections of interstate highways in the state have been constructed entirely with state money, with the government reimbursing the state when federal funds became available."

He said the financing procedures of the highway commission make it difficult to determine how much, if any, of the $11.5 million in withheld funds would be involved in county projects.

The spokesman added that present federal billboard requirements were initiated in the mid-1960's as part of the beautification program of Lady Bird Johnson.

"Until recently," he added, "personnel hadn't been available to enforce the federal requirements." But several other states

Cool Reception Noted
To Nixon Peace Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's newly unveiled eight-point Vietnam peace offer drew a cool reception from North Vietnam today and found little favor with his critics at home.

The President, in a surprise announcement, disclosed a proposal made secretly eight months ago for a U.S. pullout in exchange for a prisoner release, and his broader eight-point offer made last October. The latter proposes that South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu step down pending new election.

official voiced hope for a more-favorable North Vietnamese reaction later.

But a main aim of Nixon's 20-minute address was also to defuse domestic criticism—and various congressmen who have been attacking the administration's Vietnam policy were again disapproving Democratic presidential candidate

George McGovern said he does not think the new Nixon formula will work. Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Nixon did not offer enough to gain Hanoi's acceptance. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the American national interest "still requires complete U.S. withdrawal."

Nixon accused Hanoi of having publicly denounced the United States for not making proposals which in fact had been "made in the manner they wanted us to respond—secretly."

The North Vietnamese thus "induced many Americans in the press and the Congress into echoing their propaganda—Americans who could not know they were being falsely used by the enemy to stir up divisiveness in this country," he said.

Summary of Peace Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The following is an at-a-glance summary of President Nixon's statement on the Vietnam war Tuesday.

SECRET TALKS: Private negotiations have been held since Aug. 4, 1969, to break the impasse over Vietnam, but Nixon unveiled them in an effort to breathe some life into the Paris peace talks.

KISSINGER: Henry A. Kissinger, national-security-affairs adviser to Nixon was the negotiator at 13 secret meetings in France.

PROPOSALS: On May 31, 1971, a secret U.S. offer was set forth "to agree to a deadline for withdrawal of all American forces in exchange for release of all prisoners of war and a cease-fire." The North Vietnamese rejected it in July, demanding U.S. overthrow of the South Vietnamese government. On Oct. 11, the U.S. offered its eight-point plan that the North Vietnamese failed to answer.

THE PLAN: The last American offer would see withdrawal of all U.S. and allied forces from South Vietnam, an exchange of all prisoners, a cease-fire throughout Indochina, a new presidential election open to all factions in South Vietnam—all within six months of the signing of an agreement.

Court Enforcement
Out For Employment

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a showdown on fair employment legislation, the Senate voted today against providing for enforcement through the courts rather than by administrative action.

An amendment by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., to require court action instead of letting the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission issue cease-and-desist orders was rejected by a 48-46 vote.

Dominick's amendment first was defeated Monday by a 43-41 vote but the Senate later voted to reconsider it, opening the way for today's decisive roll call on the issue.

The EEOC, created by the 1964 Civil Rights Act, now is limited to persuasion and conciliation in trying to carry out a ban on job discrimination based on race, religion, sex and national origin.

The dispute over how to strengthen its enforcement powers was listed by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, D-N.Y., as the key question in the legislation now before the Senate, even though many other issues remain to be settled.

"This will be the showdown on the whole bill," Javits said.

The Senate rejected Dominick's amendment Monday by a 43-41 vote, but later voted to reconsider it Tuesday. After efforts to reach a compromise failed, Senate leaders scheduled the second vote for today.

President Nixon and various business groups favor the court approach approved by the House last September. Dominick said Tuesday, however, that the White House is not playing an active role in the fight, citing what he said is some division within administration ranks over what type of enforcement would be best.

Civil-rights and labor forces say the agency cannot adequately do its job without power to back its findings. Dominick contends court enforcement would be faster and more effective than cease-desist orders and also would keep the administrative and judicial functions of EEOC separate.

Despite Javits' prediction, the fight over the bill is expected to continue since many other amendments have yet to be acted on.

DSA Banquet
To Be Held
On Thursday

About 300 persons are expected to attend the Sedalia Jaycees' annual Distinguished Service Awards banquet Thursday evening in the Smith-Cotton cafeteria, according to Jaycee spokesmen.

Roy M. Fisher, dean of the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri-Columbia, will give the main address at the banquet. His talk is entitled "The Unbelievables," and deals with news management and censorship.

Fisher was editor of the Chicago Daily News before taking over as dean last April.

The Sedalia Jaycees and Jaycee Wives will present awards to winners in four categories at the banquet: outstanding young man, outstanding young woman, outstanding young educator and outstanding young farmer. Several nominees are competing in each division, and last year's winners will be on hand to present the awards, according to the Jaycees.

Entertainment will be provided by the State Fair Singers from State Fair Community College.

Tickets will be available at the door, the Jaycees have announced.

The banquet is the climax of Jaycee Week, which was recently observed by the local club. President Joe Doggett will preside over the banquet ceremonies.

Salvation Army Dinner

Discuss Rehabilitation

Rehabilitation of ghetto alcoholics was the topic of the featured speaker at the Salvation Army advisory board and Tree of Lights Victory Dinner Tuesday evening at the First United Methodist Church, Fourth and Osage.

About 80 persons heard Major Daniel Boyer discuss Harbor Light and Harbor House, which he directs and which is a Salvation Army project in St. Louis dealing with problem drinkers and alcoholics from ghetto areas.

Explaining the program, Boyer said Harbor Light operates as a receiving station for such individuals while Harbor House becomes the home of men who make the effort to stop drinking.

Boyer said one out of every 13 people who drinks is an alcoholic. He noted that contrary to what many people think, so-called "skid row" alcoholics make up only three to five per cent of all alcoholics.

Men come to Harbor Light in two ways, Boyer explained. They either come in voluntarily after recognizing their problem, or they are referred by a public agency or an individual. Boyer said the rehabilitation center gets many referrals from the St. Louis detoxification center and from the state welfare office. He added ministers

State Rep. Joe Rains, D-Sedalia, announced Wednesday he was postponing "any further action" on a bill he introduced in the House recently to allow the state to assume control of Bothwell Lodge north of Sedalia.

Rains' action comes during the middle of a county-wide petition drive aimed at preserving Bothwell Lodge as an historic landmark.

On Jan. 13, Rains reported he had been requested by Frederick O. McDaniel, Jefferson City, acting director of the Board of Training Schools, to introduce the bill. A prepared news release at that time said the Lodge "would be turned over to the state for use as a training facility for girls."

Later, however, Rains said that in introducing the bill he did not specify what the Lodge would be used for, only that it was being made available to the state.

In Wednesday's announcement, Rains said, "I am deeply gratified by the wide interest expressed by many Pettis County citizens in the proposal for the state to assume control of the historic Bothwell Lodge."

"In view of the lack of unanimous opinion by citizens as to what action the state should take, I have decided to postpone any further action on the bill until responsible groups in our community can come forth with proposals that are both

Speaking of the type of men dealt with, Boyer said 99 per cent of the time the individual who comes to Harbor Light has no money, only the clothes on his back, is always undernourished and is usually suffering some type of physical illness, often directly linked to alcoholism.

The basic needs are taken care of first, Boyer said, adding no one is admitted to the program without submitting to regular chest X-rays and blood tests provided at no charge by St. Louis medical authorities.

Total rehabilitation is sought for each individual, according to Boyer, and after a few days at Harbor Light, a man is moved to Harbor House, which was purchased 1½ years ago and accommodates 100 men. It offers a semi-permanent home for alcoholics who try to stop drinking, Boyer said.

Noting the institution provides an employment service for its residents, Boyer said one of the first tests for an individual comes shortly after completion of his first job.

Boarding House
Measure Okay

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill to license and regulate boarding homes that have three or more persons over the age of 60 as residents won tentative House approval today.

The Division of Health would have the authority to issue regulations for the operation of the homes and could inspect them at any reasonable time.

The rules could specify standards of safety, sanitation and nourishment.

Any suspected unlicensed home could be inspected on permission of the operator or with the authority of a court order.

Efforts were made to restrict the bill to homes of at least five, seven or 10 residents but the amendments were defeated.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Charles Dickey, D-Mexico, said many boarding homes are unsanitary and the residents are abused. "We want to make sure these old folks get good, safe care," he said.

The House also approved a bill boosting the maximum payments for welfare recipients who are housed in nursing homes.

It would boost the maximum monthly payment for patients in domiciliary homes from the present $110 to $150 and for those in practical nursing homes from $125 to $200. The increases were recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes in his message to the legislature Jan. 5.

A bill to take the lid off the number of Missouri legislative employees was passed 21-10 by the Senate. It now goes to the House.

The Senate is limited now to 75 employees and the House to 125. Under the bill, each house by resolution could hire additional employees with no restraints except for the amount of money appropriated to pay the salaries.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, said appropriations, judiciary and other committees need additional staff. He said he had no fear that the no-limit bill would be abused.

But Sen. Noel Cox, R-Ozark, predicted the bill would be "the most extravagant, costly and misused bill in the 28 years since I've been here." He noted that back in depression days, the House alone had hundreds of employees who did no work.

Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, said one of the criticisms of the Missouri Legislature has been that it is understaffed. But Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, said there is no guarantee that badly needed professional staffers would be hired under the Cason bill.

Other bills passed and sent to the House would:

Peter H. "Pete" Stohr, 500 West Fourth, Wednesday filed on the Republican ticket in the office of Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick to oppose incumbent Democratic State Rep. Joe Rains in the state primary in August.

Rains filed for re-election last November to represent the new 113th district, which includes Sedalia and parts of Pettis County.

Stohr, a well-known law enforcement officer, retired in 1969 after 27 years of service with the Missouri Highway Patrol. He achieved the role of corporal. Since his retirement, he has been chief security officer for Parkhurst Manufacturing Co.

Stohr, 62, was born on a farm near Cole Camp and has spent all his adult life in Sedalia. Before joining the Highway Patrol, he worked at the Missouri Pacific Shops in Sedalia as a blacksmith helper.

He is a graduate of Cole Camp High School and has done extensive course work in schools conducted by the Patrol and the FBI.

Cool Nixon Stance To United Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has made its cool attitude toward the United Nations even more evident by its lack of response to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's effort to raise some quick money for the debt-ridden organization.

Waldheim, in office only a month, spent all of Monday with President Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and congressional leaders, going over the U.N.'s financial suffering.

Although Waldheim told newsmen the response to his position was positive from the President on down, U.S. officials indicated the Austrian diplomat may have been wearing rose-colored glasses.

"The United States isn't interested in bailing the U.N. out of its hole this time," one government official said. "We're going to wait for the people who dug the hole."

In more diplomatic tones State Department spokesman Charles Bray made the same point Monday when he told newsmen it is too early to characterize the U.S. response to Waldheim's request that U.N. members advance $20 million in contributions to tide the world body over this year.

The administration first "would like to have the opportunity to see the response from other members" before deciding its own course of action, Bray said.

He added that the large U.N. debt is more the responsibility of other members, particularly those he indicated were to blame for the world crises that led to expensive U.N. peace-keeping missions.

The debt, estimated variously at $65 million by Waldheim and $150 million by Bray, is largely the result of failure by the Soviet Union, several East European nations and France to pay their share of the peace-keeping costs.

Waldheim said he is seeking support for his plan from all other members and only came to Washington first because the United States is the host nation to the U.N.

Although the Nixon administration is aloof to the $20-million request, it is sympathetic to Waldheim's general effort to bring some financial order to the U.N., which is near self-proclaimed insolvency.

He said the world body has lost esteem throughout the world and a start to regaining global confidence is to achieve fiscal reform. "Something has to be done," Waldheim told reporters, "to regain confidence... that we are keeping our house in order."

The U.N. role as a peace-keeper "can only be fulfilled if confidence is restored," he added in a statement fully agreed to by U.S. officials.

But the way to do this, according to the American sources, is for those members who caused the debt by their political refusal to pay their share to now come up with the money.

Tomatoes Proven A Valuable Food

Dear Dr. Lamb — I just love eating tomatoes with sugar and my friend insists on eating them with salt and pepper. She says that way they don't harm you. We are in our 60s. She also salts her food at the table and says salt is good for you. I always thought too much salt would cause hardening of the arteries. Am I right?

Dear Reader — The tomatoes won't harm you even if you eat them without anything. They are an excellent source of vitamins A and C. It is hard to imagine that this valuable food was once considered a poison and was included with plants of the deadly nightshade family.

Adding sugar merely adds calories. If you need to watch your calories perhaps you should use something else for seasoning.

Salt is a natural substance in the body. When the body is normal and functions properly any excess salt you use, within reason, is eliminated through the kidneys. There is no evidence that salt in the amounts used for eating can or does cause hardening of the arteries in man.

Salt can be harmful for people who retain excess fluid, such as in heart failure or liver disease. It should also be limited in people who have high blood pressure. With the exception of people with these medical problems, salt can be used. Incidentally there is a reasonable amount of salt naturally occurring in many foods, including meat, milk and vegetables.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you comment on this problem? A woman has pain in her breast and irregular periods. She tells the doctor this and when she is examined he puts the stethoscope to her back and chest without even removing her bra, and says it is probably muscle spasm and dismisses her.

Do you think doctors are too busy to really take care of a patient? Do you think she should consult another doctor? This woman is hesitant to see another doctor for fear of making a fool of herself.

Dear Reader — Doctors are people. They make mistakes or can be preoccupied and not do something obvious that they should do. I think if a person is unhappy with his doctor he should tell him so, and why. If the situation doesn't resolve itself, then go to a new doctor.

A doctor should examine a patient for his main difficulty. That means if the problem is pain in the breast, the breast should be examined. If he doesn't do it, ask him why not. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Secret Service Covers Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret Service agents are expected to begin guarding presidential candidates early next month, with at least eight of the 1972 entries likely to be offered federal bodyguards.

A panel assigned to decide which candidates are entitled to get protection is scheduled to meet Thursday.

The law provides for protection of major candidates for president and vice president unless they decline it.

The commission must figure out how to determine who in the crowded 1972 field are the major candidates.

At preliminary sessions, aides to commission members have agreed generally that the national public-opinion polls should be the basis for initial selection of candidates to protect.

The problem is to set a minimum standing in those polls as the criterion for major candidates, and that is expected to be a major topic Thursday.

The commission members are Sens. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the majority and minority leaders; Speaker of the House Carl Albert, Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, and former Sen. Thomas Kuchel of California, a public member chosen by the other panelists.

The goal of the panel is to begin coverage by Feb. 1 or Feb. 7.

One source said a standard almost certainly would be set to cover such entries as Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who has been campaigning for more than a year but still is near the bottom of the Democratic ranking in public-opinion polls.

In addition, it was understood, there will be a more general category to cover entries who are not counted by such polls, but obviously are major candidates, such as Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

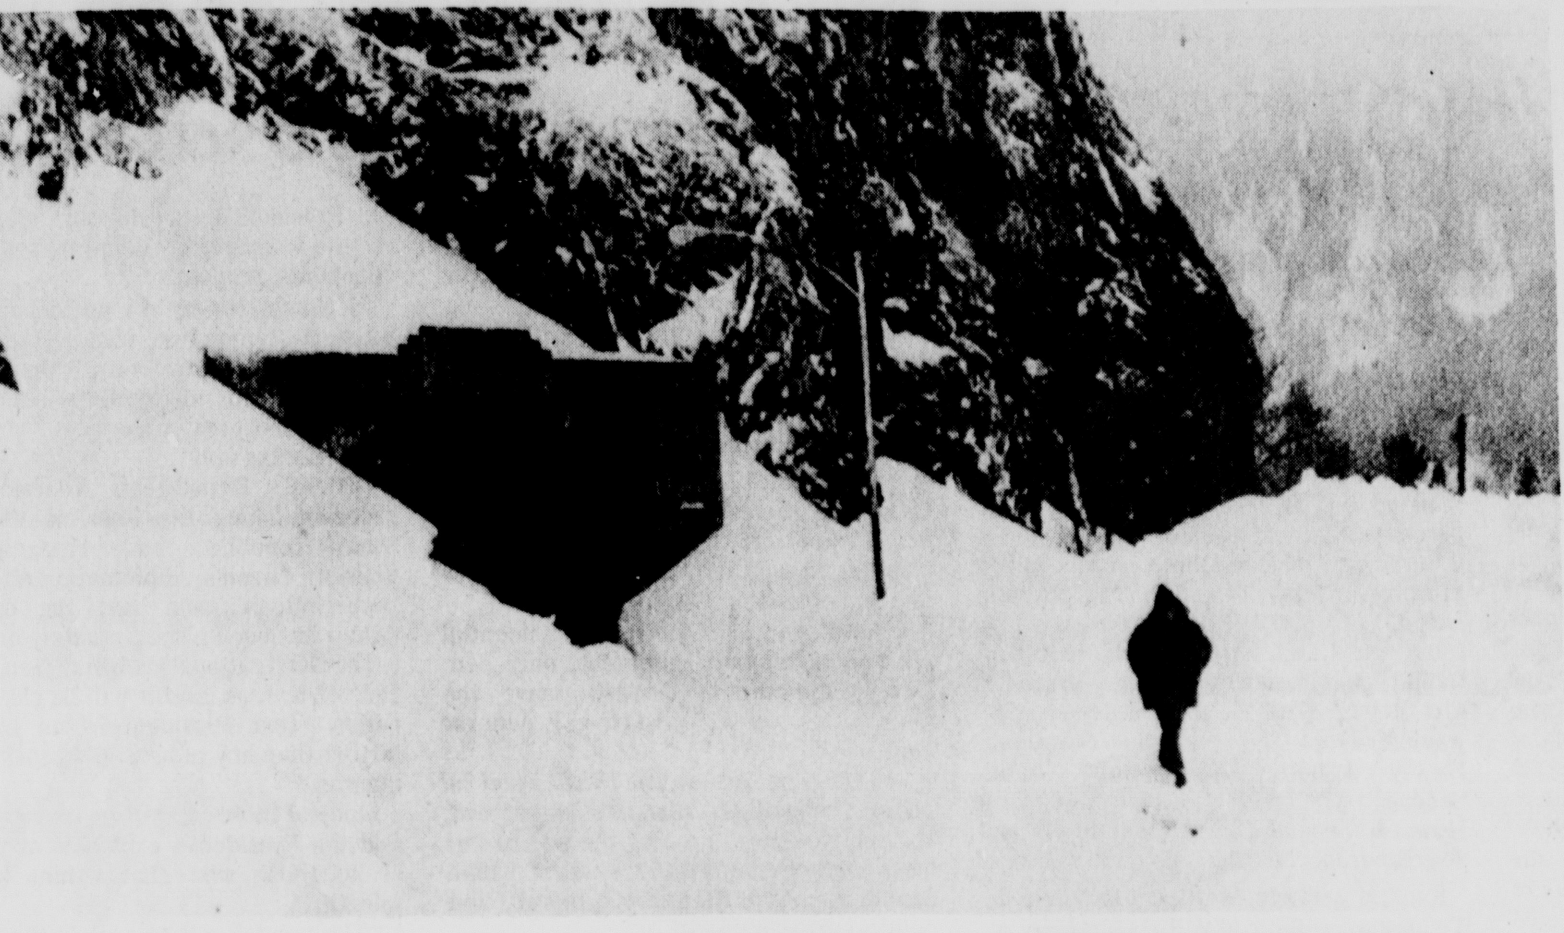

This category also would cover Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who ranks high in the polls but insists he will not be a 1972 candidate.

In addition, the commission will have to decide whether the two Republicans challenging President Nixon in the presidential primaries, Reps. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio and Paul N. McCloskey of California, should receive coverage.

Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota are certain to be offered protection, whatever standard is set.

Muskie tops the Democratic polls, followed by Kennedy and Humphrey.

Trailing them in the current surveys but likely prospects for offers of protection are New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, McGovern, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

Nixon Political Foes
Rejecting Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's political rivals and foes are, with few exceptions, rejecting the idea his newly disclosed peace plan is the long-sought key to the complex puzzle of the Vietnam war.

Congressional reaction to Nixon's Tuesday night announcement from a declaration that the President's disclosure of secret negotiations with Hanoi was his finest hour, though doubts his offer would be accepted, to a charge he has been "dealing in darkness to save his own face and that of a corrupt dictator."

Of the several Democratic presidential contenders offering comment, only Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., gave the President's new initiatives general approval.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said he doesn't believe the plan will work, and accused Nixon of "running the war to suit his election timetable rather than considering the military, moral and political issues involved."

The front-running Democrat, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, said the initiatives obviously must be welcomed, but said there is serious doubt as to whether the North Vietnamese will accept them.

Sen. Edward Brooke, a Massachusetts Republican who has differed with the President at times on foreign and military policy, said, however, he has no doubt the Nixon plan is a "generous offer to break the deadlock" and a "major step in the right direction."

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., a declared presidential contender and long-time war critic, issued attack at what he called "the President's blatant abuse of the constitutional treaty-making powers."

The right of the Senate to advise and consent to international agreements is lost, Hartke said, "when the President turns to dealing in darkness to save his own face and that of a corrupt dictator."

But Hartke acknowledged what many Washington observers were saying, that the President's speech may have undercut the war issue by adopting some of his opponents' proposals.

"I cannot convey my anger and sorrow when I remember pleading with the President upon my return from Paris last April to accept many of the same terms he produced tonight from his secret dealings," Hartke said.

Official Republican reaction was generally along the lines of that from Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott. He praised Nixon's diplomatic efforts as "superhuman" and said the onus for failure has been placed squarely on Hanoi.

The GOP national chairman, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, said it will be clear to the nation "that President Nixon has gone further than any of us would expect to end the war."

Many of those supporting the new moves said the President's explanations give the lie to those who charge him with insincerity.

"The point is not to explain the failures of the past," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. "The point is to end the war."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, coauthor of many Senate attempts to legislate complete American withdrawal, said Hanoi leaders previously have rejected "conditions requiring them to stop fighting and settle for elections in the South under a caretaker government."

Two Republican congressmen opposing the President in this year's primary expressed reservations about the new bid for different reasons.

needed to operate the program, when men start working they are required to pay rent, Boyer said. If they are not employed full-time, their rent is based on their income, he added.

Receiving only $49,000 from the United Fund, the project in 1971 raised the rest of its $234,000 budget internally, Boyer explained. The facility has a 15-member staff.

Before speaking of the St. Louis project, Boyer outlined the organization of the Salvation Army. Founded 107 years ago in London by William Booth, the Salvation Army now operates in 71 countries and has 9,097 centers, he said.

Earlier in the evening Major Marjorie Weber gave a resume of her annual report. She emphasized services performed in the past year, noting "most activities have increased."

Revealing that she represented this area when attending the White House Conference on the Aging, Major Weber said she has hopes for an increase in services for the elderly in Sedalia and Pettis County.

Lacy P. Belt, chairman of the advisory board, commended the community's generosity in 1971 and presented certificates to the organizations who manned contribution stations in the Tree of Lights fund-raising campaign last year.

The following groups received certificates: Altru Club, American War Mothers, Business and Professional Women's Club, Golden Agers Club, High Point Extension Club, Jaycees, Jaycee Wives, Kiwanis Club, Missouri Pacific Women's Club, Rod and Gun Club, Rotary Club, Sedalia Firefighters Association, Veterans of World War I and Veterans of World War I Auxiliary.

Special recognition was granted to those clubs bringing in the largest contributions. The less than 50-member category was won by the American War Mothers; 50-100 was won by Kiwanis, and the Business and Professional Women's Club won the over-100 group.

Major Weber emphasized her gratitude concerning the success of the 1971 Tree of Lights campaign. She said the $1,700 amount over 1971 goal of $4,000 was almost as much as the total received just a few years ago. She noted 1,600 people had a better Christmas as a result of the 1971 campaign.

Also named at the meeting were the advisory board officers for 1972: Lacy P. Belt, chairman; Clinton Black, vice-chairman; Bertha Welch, secretary; and Henry C. Salveter, treasurer.

Judge Rules
Driver Was Not at Fault

The driver of the car involved in an accident at 11th and Thompson Blvd., in which a Sedalia youth was injured Friday night, was absolved of any blame in Municipal Court Wednesday morning.

Earl A. Emerick, 2305 Kay, was found innocent of a charge of failing to yield the right of way in connection with the accident.

Bob Bronson, 2800 Wing, a passenger in the Emerick car, testified the car was moving slowly and had slowed to allow a car ahead to turn into the Gibson parking area. He said he saw the youth run into the street, and yelled to Emerick to "watch out for the kid." He said Emerick braked the car, but not in time to prevent the accident.

Mrs. Willis Charles, 907 Royal, testified she was the driver of the car making the turn into Gibsons, and that both cars were traveling slowly. She said as she turned into the parking area, she noticed people running up to the car behind her and that she stopped and went back to the scene herself.

Judge Lawrence Englund, after hearing the testimony, ruled that Emerick was not at fault and dismissed the charge.

The injured youth is Phillip R. Ernst, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Ernst, 2904 West 11th. He was taken to Bothwell Hospital and later transferred to the University of Missouri Medical Center, Columbia, for treatment of severe head injuries and a fractured leg.

Wednesday the Medical Center reported the youth is still unconscious and listed in critical condition in the surgical intensive care unit.

Four Persons Face
Charges After Raid

MARSHALL — Four persons whose names are not yet available, have been charged in connection with a drug raid here Friday.

The four were to appear in Saline County Magistrate Court Wednesday morning for arraignment, but due to a busy court schedule the arraignment was continued to Wednesday afternoon, according to the Saline County Sheriff's office.

Twenty-nine persons were apprehended in or near a trailer home rented by John Williams on the outskirts of Marshall, following a seven-month study of the trailer area.

The raid was authorized after a girl reported she became ill after taking a pill traced to the trailer.

Twelve of the persons apprehended were juveniles.

Skull Fracture
Received By Man
In Truck Mishap

Danny Mark Cheek, 28, Kansas City, was transferred from Bothwell Hospital to Baptist Memorial Hospital, Kansas City, for treatment of a skull fracture following an accident at 16th and Barrett Tuesday night.

Dr. F. E. Manatt, on duty in the emergency room at Bothwell Hospital, said Cheek was brought to the hospital by ambulance, examined and then taken to Kansas City.

Dr. Manatt said Cheek was in satisfactory condition for the trip.

Cheek was driving a Ford van-type truck west on 16th, according to the police report, when the vehicle went out of control, veered to the left and struck a tree in the median strip. The front of the van was extensively damaged.

Require St. Louis County cities of 400 or more to have 24-hour police operations, with at least one man on duty at all times.

Allow sheriffs to post jail rules so prisoners couldn't demand that their favorite foods be brought in.

Give the Greene County sheriff a $10 fee in every felony case.

Tuesday the House tentatively approved a public defender bill to provide free legal counsel for indigents accused of felonies.

It now is ready for final passage in the House.

In its final form, the system would be administered by the Appellate Judicial Commissions. They would appoint the public defenders. In low population outstate areas the public defender would be responsible for felony cases in two or more judicial circuits.

In populous areas public defender staffs would operate in single judicial circuits.

Missouri is one of the last three states in the country not to have some form of public defender system. The others are Kentucky and Louisiana.

Last year the Missouri Supreme Court served notice it would not force any attorney to act as legal counsel for an indigent person without fees and expenses after Sept. 1, 1972.

besides Missouri have been made aware that compliance will probably be necessary to keep receiving federal money."

The most recent bill considered by state lawmakers includes federal spacing size and safety requirements and also would allow signs directing travelers to natural, scenic or historical sites.

One provision would permit brand name or resort name tags on signs telling interstate motorists that gas, food and lodging is just ahead.

Sign permits would be permanent but billboard owners would have to pay a $2 inspection fee every two years. Existing signs would be exempt unless they were obsolete, in bad repair or unsafe.

No signs in rural areas would be permitted beyond 600 feet from an existing business and none within 500 feet of an interchange. Flashing light signs that might confuse motorists also would be barred, along with signs painted on trees or rocks.

No sign could be removed unless the money was available to buy the land or pay condemnation costs.

City Council Discussion Focuses on Resolutions

(Democrat-Capital Service)
COLE CAMP — Resolutions and discussion of a city comprehensive plan and reports on progress on disposal plant and water systems programs occupied the City Council here Tuesday night.

The first resolution passed by the group allows the city to advertise for bids for the demolition of a downtown cement block building. The action is part of a clearing project to make way for a parking lot at the site.

Another resolution adopted allows the city assessor to start collecting dog license fees and issuing certificates to owners to have their pets inoculated at a free rabies clinic, as provided for in an earlier city ordinance.

The council decided to start charging a fee for use of the city dump and has ordered it closed except on the first and third Saturdays of each month. This resolution also provides for a caretaker who will collect the fees. The amount charged for use of the dump will depend on the volume of refuse left there. The ordinance becomes effective Feb. 1.

A nominating committee, composed of chairman George Donnell, Dick Pritzell and Lloyd Schnakenberg was appointed to select a slate of candidates for city offices. These names will be presented in a mass meeting on March 13. According to Mayor H. R. Meyer the list will be non-partisan since the city does not recognize political parties in the election.

Following extensive discussion, a zoning and subdivision regulation to be incorporated in the city's comprehensive plan was tabled for a later date. The effects of the plan are expected to guide the city's expansion and improvement over the next 20 years, Meyer said, and such areas as parks, streets, sewers and a water system are included.

Lastly the board heard reports of progress made on repairs to the disposal plant and the new water system. The water improvement program is in its final stages with pumping from the new well expected to begin in three weeks, Meyer said.

The $32,000 project, funded entirely from the city's water fund revenues, resulted in the drilling of a new well which is expected to produce 300 gallons of water per minute as compared with the present combined total output of two wells at 200 gallons per minute.

Committee Position To Sheriff

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax has been appointed chairman of a committee to review the priorities for the coming fiscal year of the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

Fairfax's appointment was announced Tuesday by Isaac Gurman, chairman of the council while the Pettis County sheriff was in Jefferson City to confer with council representatives.

Also appointed to the committee was Joseph Simeone, of the St. Louis Court of Appeals; Walter Sartorius, chairman of the State Board of Probation and Parole; Louis McHardy, administrator of Juvenile Courts in St. Louis; and Charles Morris, who is a consultant for the council.

Fairfax said the council has the job of administering the Federal Omnibus Crime Control funds to various regions in the state each year.

Fairfax said he also met Tuesday with William Culver, chairman of the Council, and Charles Mann, director of the St. Louis Bureau for Men and a consultant to the Council. He said a Feb. 4 date had been set for hearings to begin in Jefferson City to determine Law Enforcement Council appropriations to various regions in the state.

The council will review the various priorities presented and make recommendations at its state meeting in St. Louis Feb. 22.

Pruitt-Igoe Offer Has Been Made

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Kansas City councilman and shopping center developer has confirmed that he is making an offer to buy the Pruitt-Igoe Housing Project in St. Louis.

Councilman Richard Tolbert said Tuesday night that he had orally made an offer to purchase the federally-financed high-rise apartment complex in St. Louis which had had its share of crime, vandalism and money problems over the past 15 years.

Tolbert said he is interested in buying the project and is preparing to submit his offer in writing. He did not say what his money offer would be but said he understood the asking price was around $3 million.

Tolbert was quoted as saying:

"If they want to sell the housing development, I want to buy. We have essentially fine buildings in the project and I see the problem surrounding it as one of people and not of concrete and material used in its construction."

The Kansas City developer said he believes he can solve the problem by converting the huge housing complex into general housing — one in which the residents would be of mixed ethnic and economic background.

Sees Germany in U.N.

U Thant, former secretary general of the United Nations, said in a news conference in Chicago Monday that both East and West Germany will be members of the U.N. "before the end of the year." U Thant was in Chicago to receive an honorary degree from Roosevelt University. (UPI)

Trial of Damico Is Transferred

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The trial of Anthony P. Damico, charged in the slaying of a suburban St. Louis housewife, was transferred to the Jackson County Circuit Court Tuesday on a change of venue.

Judge Minian Edwards, of the St. Louis County Circuit Court, ordered the transfer of the trial from Clayton, Mo., to the Kansas City Court on a motion by the defense.

Damico, 24, was charged in the beating death of Mrs. Sally Lucas, who disappeared Aug. 16 after leaving a St. Charles, Mo., shopping center. The woman's body was discovered Sept. 5 near Babler State Park, about 25 miles west of St. Louis.

Damico was arrested near Panama City Beach, Fla., on Aug. 27 while sleeping in Mrs. Lucas's car.

Board Ignores Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bitterly divided Pay Board again has ignored its own wage guidelines, this time conditionally approving a 10-per-cent pay raise this year for 140,000 railroad trainmen.

But it is uncertain whether the AFL-CIO United Transportation Union will honor the long-delayed pact, which contains streamlined work rules the railroad industry says will speed service and eventually save money.

The UTU had demanded full approval of the pact before putting the new work rules into effect. UTU President A.H. Chesler refused to comment on Tuesday's almost-total approval until he receives official notification of it.

The full UTU contract contains raises of 42 per cent over 3½ years, retroactive more than two years to Jan. 1, 1970. The board cleared the agreement until the present, and said it intends to approve two raises totaling 10 per cent this year if the work rules are put into effect. That leaves uncertain the fate of two raises totaling 5 per cent next year.

The approval motion, which passed 8 to 5 with five labor members and three business members in the majority, in effect grants yet another exception to the board's general rule that wages in new contracts can't go up more than 5.5 per cent a year, or 7 per cent in special circumstances.

The board has yet to apply its 5.5-per-cent guideline strictly to any of the powerful unions whose agreements it has reviewed so far. It rejected a 12-per-cent raise for aerospace workers, but then said it would approve the entire raise if part of it is moved to the second year of a three-year pact.

Tuesday's motion approving the bulk of the UTU contract was sponsored by business member Benjamin F. Biaggini, a railroad executive who sources say strongly wants to see the new work rules put into effect, whatever the price in wages.

Although the board's official spokesmen declined to give details of Tuesday's voting, other sources said the five labor members and three business members made up the majority. Four public members and Chicago publisher Robert Bassett, a business member, voted no. Chairman George H. Boldt abstained and business member Virgil Day left the room during voting.

Sources said that after approval of the trainmen's contract, UAW Vice President Pat Greathouse moved to reinstate the rejected 12 per cent aerospace raise. This move was defeated 9 to 5 with labor in the minority.

Boys Club Talk Topic

Palmer Nichols, director of the Sedalia Boys Club, was the featured speaker at the Tuesday meeting of the Noon Optimist Club.

Nichols told the group Sedalia's first Boys Club was organized on Jan. 13, 1962, with 13 supervisors and about 400 boys participating.

The original group, he said, used Convention Hall in Liberty Park for several years. Nichols also pointed out that since the Boys Club was moved from there, the organization has been seriously hampered by the lack of adequate facilities.

The director outlined some of the areas in which the Boys Club is active — physical education, community participation, health and first aid, and individual guidance.

Morris Byrum, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Jim Moore was the guest of Kenneth Schilb, club president, and Manny Gerlt was the guest of Dr. Kenneth Holdren.

Indian Newspapers Fuel 'Paranoia'

CALCUTTA, India — The dispatch out of Bangladesh says that a "genocide enquiry commission" will be given allegations that "the American organization, the CIA, and the military adviser of the former governor conspired in killing intellectuals of Bangladesh."

is learned."

A dispatch out of Bombay quotes "unimpeachable sources" as saying that "it was the American submarine, Fargo, which torpedoed the (Indian frigate) Khukri in the high seas between Bombay and Karachi" in the first week of December.

This attempt to blame the U.S. for the sinking of the Indian vessel appeared in the Hindustan Standard, one of the largest English-language dailies, and in Ananda Bazar Patrika, the Bengali daily with the largest circulation in India. U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Keating called this report "totally false" and pointed out that there is no American nuclear submarine named "Fargo." The chief of staff of the Indian navy told a press conference recently that it was a Pakistani submarine that sank the Khukri.

But news stories and editorials continue to pin the attack on the U.S. Navy.

"CIA Conspiracy to Foil Bangladesh Revolution" screams the headline from Darpan, a Bengali weekly. It reports from Dacca, without attribution to anyone, claims that the CIA and "Indian vested interests" are plotting against the new country and that Bangladesh has "set up a special cell to watch on the CIA and its agents."

These are just samples of the journalistic fever, the press paranoia, that evidences one fact: U.S. relations with India have been bad during past crises, but they have never been worse than now. And there is slim hope for improvement very soon.

I visited Asoke K. Sarkar, managing director and editor of the Standard and Ananda Bazar Patrika, the papers that kept accusing the U.S. of sinking the Indian ship despite even Indian government denials. I asked Sarkar when these emotional attacks might end — when there might be some improvement in U.S.-Indian relations.

"Not as long as Nixon and Kissinger are in power," Sarkar said, "and I expect Nixon to win another term."

Sarkar's papers, like many others, take the line that they still like Americans but they hate Nixon and Kissinger. Nonetheless, the attacks go far beyond the two men in the White House, portraying the Pentagon as pushing a war strategy in which Americans incite Asians to kill each other, deploring U.S. foreign aid as a foul attempt to buy up countries and, of course, whipping the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency as an omnipresent, almost-but-not-quite-omnipotent international ogre.

Sarkar is in fact an enigmatic example of the deterioration in Indo-American relations. He was for years an outspoken friend of the United States but is now one of the most intemperate critics.

Several editors and others here say that the Communist parties will realize what Sarkar called "maximum benefit out of this situation created by Nixon and Kissinger." This volatile, poverty stricken, highly emotional state of West Bengal is where they might make the most of anti-Americanism.

How Not To Fight Pollution

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The threat of pollution to this and other industrial societies is getting worse. Yet only a few notes of hard realism are being struck in the fight against it.

To give you an idea, what is being funneled into the air and what is going to be, consider this:

In 1970, the United States consumed the energy equivalent of 2.2 billion metric tons of coal, a very sizable part of the world's 1970 consumption of 7.5 billion metric tons.

That works out to around 11 tons a person for the world. In the underdeveloped lands, the annual average energy consumption per capita has been a mere 220 pounds of coal.

But the big, affluent polluters are going to befool the air a lot more as their populations and their economies expand. Thirty years from now, the United States will have nearly tripled its annual energy consumption—to the equivalent of six billion metric tons of coal. And the world? Its total then is expected to reach 32 billion tons!

So what do we do about it? Abandon technology? Put stiff limits on industrial production?

Some economists say that as man's numbers double (which they are now doing every few decades), his material demands and output triple. And his wastes, a terrible water pollution problem, also triple.

With the poor nations clamoring for entry into the affluent club, with their unemployment spinning to staggering heights, with the poor in already affluent nations looking for a better break, does anyone seriously imagine we are going to smother technology and hold down industrial output?

We obviously are not going down that route. No advanced modern society will accept mounting joblessness and poverty as the price of freedom from the suffocations of pollution.

That's not all of it, either. Real action against pollutants also requires enormous applications of imaginative technology.

Writing in Harper's magazine, social scientist Peter Drucker says environmental controls will demand technology "at a level at least as high as the technology whose misuse it is designed to correct."

There can be no making of things, even anti-pollution devices, without use of energy. So the whole drive for a cleaner environment compels great energy output.

Drucker says that it has to be electrical energy. That means more power plants, which are themselves polluters. Environmentalists would like it if no one ever built another standard power plant. They talk of a turn to solar energy. But using the sun's power is not yet a well-advanced art. Much time and experimental money is needed.

In Drucker's view, it is sheer hypocrisy to contend, as some environmentalists appear to do, that the techniques and the great cost of an anti-pollution attack can be managed without an expanding economy. He writes:

"If there is no expansion of output equal to the additional cost of cleaning up the environment, the cost burden will—indeed, must—be met by cutting the funds available for education, health care, or the inner city, thus depriving the poor."

He argues that even severe cuts in defense spending would not free the kind of financial resources needed for the environment fight.

None of this means the battle can't be or shouldn't be fought. It's just going to take far more money, time, imagination and hard work than most of the crusaders seem to understand.

Nixon Takes Raps For Deficit Budget

Democrats, especially those with presidential ambitions, are making hay out of President Nixon's budget message, with its huge deficits.

Conservative Republicans to whom a balanced budget is a political article of faith also are finding little comfort in the red ink, which Nixon says will total $38.8 billion the current fiscal year and $25.5 the next.

The Democrats will no doubt make the deficit budget a campaign issue. The party's front-runner, Sen. Edmund Muskie, has already blasted the President for his "disastrous mismanagement of the economy."

But there is a danger here—Republicans could readily counter with facts and figures on the deficit budgets run up during the Johnson administration, when the nation attempted to fight a war and enact sweeping social legislation at the same time without raising taxes. Most economists agree that four years of this kind of fiscal irresponsibility was what plunged the nation into an inflationary recession.

Actually liberal Democrats are not opposed to deficit spending—the desirability of which is also one of THEIR articles of faith—only to the funding priorities asked by Nixon.

The leading Democratic presidential contenders want different priorities—more money for social, health and education programs instead of defense needs. But even here the administration can point out that for the first time the defense budget is not the largest: the proposed budget for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is $78.95 billion, $2.45 billion more than Defense.

President Nixon called his deficit budget "strong but necessary medicine." Most Americans would only hope that the treatment is temporary.

Reckless GI Drivers Hurt Viet Relations

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — We have concluded from secret surveys that the United States in its anxiety to win the war in Vietnam, has lost the people of Vietnam.

The surveys were conducted by the U.S. Pacification Studies Branch, which interviewed Vietnamese at all levels to find out what they really think of Americans.

For page after page, these polls contradict the puffery put out by the Pentagon public relations mill. Instead of gratitude for our military help, most Vietnamese distrust, dislike, even despise Americans.

The Vietnamese even question the economic benefits, which our $120 billion spending spree is supposed to have brought to Vietnam.

"Eighty per cent of the respondents felt that the economic chaos and the price increases were the main reasons that the majority of Vietnamese people dislike U.S. soldiers," declared one survey.

"All agreed that the U.S. troops benefited a small number of people but had caused economic chaos and difficulties for the majority. Money ... is spent carelessly, driving the cost of living skyward."

In one area, the pollsters reported: "Fifteen percent of the respondents in Binh Phu and Binh Quoi Hamlets said that they had lost land, farms or gardens which had been appropriated to build the army base, but that they had not received adequate compensation."

And villagers near the huge U.S. military base at Long Binh complained "that" the use of defoliants has caused damage to the people's health, animals, farms and gardens.

"Forty-eight per cent of the respondents," the survey added, claimed the "harmful defoliants (are) especially damaging to animals and fruit trees."

In an earlier column, we quoted highlights from the secret surveys showing that the Vietnamese blame Americans, specifically, for needless killings, drug smuggling and prostitution.

But the "most serious problem" in report after report has been "the traffic accidents caused by a number of careless American truck drivers who drove fast and carelessly."

From our own visits to Vietnam, we can attest to the wild driving. Often, young GI drivers don't dare slow down for fear they will get a hand grenade tossed into their laps. But there has also been drunken and dangerous driving.

"A (Vietnamese) employee of a U.S. agency," begins a typical report, "said that an employee working on Long Binh was run over and killed by a U.S. Army truck while he was walking home after work. The American driver was drunk, and the Vietnamese employees assumed the driver would be imprisoned or sent home, but a few days later they learned he had been promoted."

A 50-year-old Vietnamese told another interviewer: "In Ho Nai ... a U.S. soldier was speeding, and he hit a jeep driven by a Vietnamese captain. The officer was thrown out of the jeep and knocked unconscious, however, the U.S. soldiers just laughed and kept driving."

The consensus of 98 Vietnamese workers, merchants, soldiers and government officials was that "the people are very angry because reimbursements are not satisfactory and the (American) soldiers leave the scene."

So furious have the Vietnamese become that recently a group held a reckless American driver hostage and demanded compensation on the spot.

Lt. Gen. Michael Davison, commander of military region three, gave his troops this stern warning:

"In the first nine days of this month, five Vietnamese were killed (in this region) by U.S. military drivers, each of whom had received oral reprimands for speeding just the previous month. These (are) senseless, inexcusable tragedies ..."

A similar warning came from U.S. military headquarters in Saigon to all Americans. The bulletin said that the U.S. driver was to blame in 60 per cent of the traffic accidents involving Vietnamese but that 90 per cent of the casualties were suffered by the Vietnamese. Most Vietnamese demonstrations against Americans, said the bulletin, stemmed from traffic accidents.

Our compelling conclusion, in the words of one survey, is that U.S. troops "create hostility which, in turn, ruins the chance of a good Vietnamese-U.S. relationship."

Conservative House Democrats are preparing to beat the bushes for delegates who will vote for House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills at the Democratic convention.

For the first time, a large percentage of convention delegates will be elected from the grass roots, and the congressmen intend to campaign in their home districts for pro-Mills delegates.

"Mills already has a hundred public and private endorsements among House Members," one congressman told us. "If even half of them can exert enough influence to elect delegates committed to Mills, he's going to be a real sleeper at the convention."

Here is another slam that wound up in never-never land. This time we have to give South 99 per cent of the blame. We would not have settled for a game once North gave some sign of life.

Strangely enough we don't quarrel with South's failure to open with a forcing two bid. Somehow or other no one ever plays at one-club and South had plenty of chances to bid on after the one-club opening.

North scraped the bottom of the barrel with his one-trump call after West's heart overcall but North did have the minimum for his bid. The trouble with his subsequent bidding was that he just didn't like his hand.

South did really force him and he hated to bid three clubs after the heart cue bid. Still he did make that call and at that point South's only problem should have been whether to stop at six or go to seven.

South must have felt this way at first. His jump to four diamonds had to be a super force and right here is where North made a bad call. North should have bid five clubs but North wanted to warn his partner and made the no purpose call of four hearts.

It did scare South. Suddenly he visualized North with something like the ace-queen of hearts and three little cards in each minor suit. Even with this horrible holding there would be some play for the slam and we still blame South for not bidding it.

Melina Mercouri Longs For Homeland

By PHIL THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sprawled barefoot on a couch in her hotel living room, Melina Mercouri wearily announced to the ceiling: "Do you want to see a dead person? Then look at me!"

Assured she looked far from dead, the vibrant Greek actress hopped to her feet, displayed the wide smile and husky laugh first seen and heard by many in the film "Never On Sunday," shook hands, then lay down again.

"Why am I tired?" she repeated. "What a Greek question! I woke up at 6 o'clock this morning to do a television interview. That was followed by many other interviews. It is now late in the afternoon. And you, my love, came late."

She laughed again and tucked her feet under her, explaining, "I have claustrophobia about my feet. I am very used to walking on the Greek sand and in the Greek sun without my shoes."

Miss Mercouri hasn't walked in Greece since late 1966. "That was the last time I am in Greece," she explained wistfully. She had come to New York to star in a musical show called "Ilya Darling." While the show, the stage version of "Never On Sunday," was running on Broadway, the Greek government changed and came under its present rule.

The current government, she says, took away her citizenship and confiscated her property, a fact she laments in her new book, "I Was Born Greek." The book, her first, tells of her early life, her friends, the political makeup of Greece—which she opposes—but mostly it celebrates her love for Greece. She remarks in the first paragraph: "What I love most in the world is Greece, but the Greek sea, the Greek hills, the Greek sun, the reflection of the sun on the Greek hills are not for me to see. I am not permitted to return to Greece. That is why I am writing this book."

Fingering a string of worry beads—"I am not worried. They make me think better. And I don't smoke too much"—Miss Mercouri says that despite the lack of a Greek passport she was given papers by Switzerland which enable her to be a "satellite."

"You don't know how I can be a satellite?" she laughs. "Then I will tell you. I go around the world. Since the Swiss gave me the papers I go often to Switzerland. I have great feeling for the Swiss. But I have not a home." However, she and her husband, filmmaker Jules Dassin, do keep an apartment in Paris.

"No," she continues, "I cannot go to Greece, and I miss it like a damned woman! Like all Greeks miss Greece. The most terrible thing you can say to a person is, 'You are not Greek, you are not Spanish, you are not Pakistani.' That is the most terrible thing."

She bit her lip, and then the laugh bubbled out again. "You know," she said, "they have declared me a non-Greek. They are ridiculous!"

Miss Mercouri, who trained as a classical actress in Greece but also has done many contemporary plays, among them "A Streetcar Named Desire," has no special feeling for the stage over the movies.

Star And Satellite

Melina Mercouri, pictured in New York, is the Greek actress who first charmed Americans as the star of the film, "Never on Sundays." Being Greek is the qualification she prizes most, even though she hasn't been able to return to her country since the present regime came into power in 1967, has no longer a Greek passport and uses Swiss papers to go around the world as a "satellite." She's recently had a book published, her first, called "I Was Born Greek," mostly celebrating her love for her country. (AP)

Administration Seeking Federal Spending Cuts

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is trying again to cut back federal spending of a popular 36-year-old farm conservation program called REAP.

Plans for the REAP reduction were disclosed Monday in President Nixon's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The letters stand for Rural Environmental Assistance Program, until a year ago known as "ACP" or the Agricultural Conservation Program.

The new budget asks for a 1973 program totaling $140 million, a reduction of $55.5 million from 1972. The program has been a favorite target for administration budget slicers in recent years.

Each time, however, Congress has brought pressure to restore all or part of the money.

The 1972 plan, for example, was trimmed to $140 million, but then was boosted to $195.5 million—the full amount Congress had specified—only three weeks ago.

Under the program, farmers can get federal payments to defray costs, usually half, of carrying out approved conservation projects on their land such as terracing, pond building and the like.

The budget proposal for 1973 REAP financing, as all others submitted by Nixon, will come in for close examination by Congress during appropriations hearings this spring.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says an outbreak in Texas and Oklahoma of a cattle skin disease, psoroptic scabies, is the worst to hit stockmen in 30 years.

Some 137 livestock inspectors have been trained by USDA and state animal health officials to help cattlemen combat the disease, the department said Monday.

Federal and state quar-antines, restricting cattle shipments, are currently in effect in 34 Texas panhandle counties and 16 in Oklahoma, officials said. An estimated 185,000 cattle are being treated from herds known to have scabies in the quarantine areas, the department said.

In addition, about 3.5 million cattle must be examined to determine if they are free of the disease before the restrictions can be lifted the department said.

Scabies, caused by tiny mites, also have been found in Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska. The infected cattle, however, were traced to the Texas-Oklahoma area, officials said.

The USDA said New Mexico state authorities have placed quarantines on livestock in three areas where scabies outbreaks have been reported.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is hurriedly putting together standby plans just in case Congress approves a 25-per-cent boost in grain price supports, a move opposed by the Nixon administration.

A bill calling for a support boost of feed grains and wheat has passed the House. The Senate Agriculture Committee held a hearing Monday on the proposal and may vote Wednesday on whether to report it to the floor for action.

Meantime, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in USDA, which administers crop price support programs, is having to design new plans just in case the support boost clears Congress.

The strategy is further complicated by the scheduled start on Feb. 3—of farmer signups in 1972 wheat, feed grain and cotton programs. If Congress approves the higher supports, an ASCS spokesman said, the signup probably will have to be delayed or extended.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told the senators Monday that the proposed 25-per-cent increase in government price supports would "be bad for agriculture and in the end would create more problems" than solve.

Uncle Sam's Employees Favored With High Wages

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's highest-paid employee can summon a helicopter to his lawn, go through stoplights, have the Marine band play at his parties and leave a magnificent public-owned mansion to weekend in a public-owned mountain hideaway.

The rest of America's 2.8 million government employees aren't as well off as Richard M. Nixon, but compared with the rest of us, they have it pretty good.

Their pay, thanks to a pliant Congress, ranks favorably with private industry; their retirement benefits are the envy of unions; their vacations and sick leave are better than most.

And then there's job security: not as enduring as commonly thought, but certainly no worse than in the outside world.

Those factors alone would indicate that the man who draws his pay from Uncle Sam is in an elite class. Sometimes it's so; often it's not. The government giveth and the government taketh away.

For instance:

—President Nixon announced last August his three-month wage-price-rent freeze and ordered that Jan. 1 pay raises for federal employees be postponed until July 1 "to check the rise in the cost of government." Federal workers howled they were being made sacrificial goats.

—The Cost of Living Council exempted them from controls, leaving the matter to Congress which restored the 5.5 per cent raise at an added cost of more than $1 billion in the January-

June period. The White House said that Nixon's opposition has not changed because "federal employees should set an example." —Nixon ordered a 5 per cent cut in federal employment. In private industry pink slips would flutter. In government it's done mostly by attrition—people retire, they're not replaced.

American writers often portrayed the public servant as sucking from the public trough, an incompetent hanging on for his pension, rising routinely through others' retirement and unfit to compete in the workaday world.

The taint lingers. In a work force of millions it undoubtedly exists in dismaying numbers. But today's federal civil servant often is something more.

—There are people who are so dedicated about what they are doing they get their rewards from the job," said Raymond Jacobson, director of the Bureau of Policies and Standards in the Civil Service Commission.

Frequently forgotten in Washington, he said, is the enormous diversity in the work force. "We have guys who predict weather, deliver mail, build ships, repair airplanes, ship goods, run hospitals."

Said John Griner, president of the American Federation of Government Employees: "One of the drawbacks of the federal service, ever since we've been a nation, was the concept that 'father knows best,' management was not to be questioned—it's always right and the employee is always wrong."

The public looked down its nose, was led to believe there were too many federal employees. Now I think there's a definite trend in the other direction. The federal employee is looked on as a human being rather than a cog in a machine: people recognize him for what he is—as a whole, the hardest working, most loyal group we have in this country today."

Their enthusiasm is not universally shared. A topflight scientist, involved in space studies in a private firm, was recruited by the government to do work that was even more exotic. After four months, he's eager to return to the outside.

"I sometimes get the feeling that it's an excellent place to retire if you have no aspirations," he said. "An employee either in government or industry seeks two things: treat me well and use me well. To high caliber people the latter is more important than the first."

"I find less challenge in government than I found in industry. This is because of the bureaucracy, it's a big huge organization and the inertia is very high."

He talked about interoffice rivalries, empire building, and added: "A lot of people get into situations where there is no challenge. They have a lot to offer. They are pressured to stay and they do stay, but their personality changes. If I compromise once, twice, three times because I have a family to feed, then I just survive and I don't care."

A fearful word to government employees is "rified," a term that stands for "reduction in force." The possibility of being rified—belying the myth of total security—is what keeps Washington's large private employment agency industry humming.

A senator's assistant, who got the job after she was rified from Civil Service, said "if you have any initiative at all, a large government office isn't the place for you. It's always routine. Those who have long tenure coast along because nobody can move them."

Government-wide, Jacobson said, there is a 12 per cent annual turnover in employees. Four or five years ago, in a looser labor market, it ran 20 per cent.

"The turnover is always highest among people with the least service," he said. "As you get past the 3-4 year mark, they tend to be much more permanent members of the staff."

Civil Service can be a comfortable thing, with benefits not found in any recruitment brochures.

At income tax time, most agencies in Washington set up a room to give their employees help with the forms, staffed sometimes by personnel from the Internal Revenue Service. The nongovernment public can get IRS help, but it requires a trip to the office during the 9-5 working day.

For the Washington-based government worker there are bus shuttles between far-flung agencies. It's possible to park on the fringes of the city and be transported to work, free.

In industry a two-week vacation usually means 10 days. In government it's 14 days.

Laws bar strikes by federal employees, but government unions flourish. The AFL-CIO is on record demanding the right to strike, but the push is not hard because the no-strike rule has a hidden benefit. It means that dues can be devoted to lobbying in Congress rather than building a strike fund reserve.

"As a whole I think federal employees have done well with lobbying efforts," Jacobson said.

Civil Service said that in the last year 26,000 employees were fired for cause: incompetency, inefficiency, drunkenness or rank subordination.

"But you can't be fired for reasons that are arbitrary or capricious," Jacobson said. "Your tenure doesn't mean you are protected no matter what you do."

With the 5.5 per cent pay raise, Civil Service salaries start at $4,564 a year and rise to $36,000. A job at GS7, the type offered to beginning lawyers, starts at $9,053. A GS-9 gets $11,046 to start. Each year of service brings an increase.

Government salaries generally came in line with the private sector under the Salary Comparability Act of 1970. There are regular surveys and pay is adjusted periodically. The time lag between survey and adjustment puts federal employees some six months behind their counterparts. It is the survey that President Nixon unsuccessfully sought to delay.

The United States Chamber of Commerce sent congressmen letters saying federal pay is outdistancing private industry. But, said a staff member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, "they were using average industrial pay. A lot of congressmen use that comparison too, but you can't compare an attorney with a clerk."

By law, military increases match that of the government's classified employees.

Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, has the reputation of watching the federal payroll like a starlet counting calories. On his desk is a plaque: "It's getting harder and harder to support the government in the manner to which it has become accustomed."

"This can't go on much longer. I'm not trying to make a whipping boy of the federal employee. I never like to see pay rolled back, but we can't continue to pay military increases twice a year. It's a contribution to the collapse of this country," Gross said in an interview.

He said that on an annual basis the latest increase for federal and military pay is $2 billion. "Back of this is always another increase," he said. "You see only the tip of the iceberg."

He referred to the cost of pensions, which are based on salaries and go up with each increase. The latest raise, Gross said, will cost $2.6 billion in 30 years—a liability later generations will have to meet.

For minorities, working for the government is significantly better. Nearly 20 per cent of federal employees belong to minorities, more than 15 per cent blacks.

Irvig Kator, assistant executive director of the Civil Service Commission, said the attraction of government service for minorities is "the knowledge they get a fair shake, knowing they won't be discriminated against and the opportunity to move up."

Mind Your Money

Tips on Making Money

By PETER WEAVER

Q — I would like to find work to do in my home. I have a small child and cannot work outside. However, I'm wary of some of the ads which claim you can make a lot of money stuffing envelopes or clipping newspapers. Any ideas? — Mrs. C.J.H. Boone, N.C.

A — You are correct in your suspicion of those "make big money at home" ads. The Post Office says most of them lure you into sending money but give precious little work in return.

Here are some ideas which some of my readers have found can help make money at home:

MENDING: If you're handy with needle and thread, local cleaners have plenty of mending work. Check your telephone book's yellow pages. Some may even pick up and deliver the work.

TYPING: If you're a good typist, put your name and address and sales pitch up on local church, "Y" and Chamber of Commerce bulletin boards. A Virginia housewife has built up a local typing and addressing business into a full-time job. Check your yellow pages for names of local mail-order companies. They often provide piece work.

SERVICE: Some women have set up neighborhood babysitting agencies where parents can get a sitter with one call instead of going down the list. Setting up your own answering service or refurbishing furniture are other types of jobs that have proved successful.

The main thing is to use your local phone book to line up work. Don't send off money to some unknown mail-order huckster.

Q — Do you have any ideas on how to cut down the noise coming from loud records and piano playing in the apartment below ours? It isn't the melody that's so bad, it's the beat that drives us crazy. — Mrs. W.B.G., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A — Architects say you've got to absorb those vibrations. If you can't get your neighbor to soft-pedal the base, a heavy wall-to-wall carpet with pad is your best bet. Possibly, you can get your landlord to put acoustical tile on the ceiling below your apartment.

Q — We are forming a local association to combat pollution and promote recycling of waste materials. Where can we get background information on the various laws related to pollution control? — B.M., Silver Spring, Md.

A — Federal and state government offices (found in the phone book) have many pamphlets on pollution control. You can get them free.

There's a digest of all the state and federal pollution laws which also describes the various agencies concerned with pollution. It's called "Your Government and the Environment" and can be purchased for $9.95 through: Output Systems, Dept. ME, Box 2407, Arlington, Va. 22202.

Q — A real estate broker is selling my home and I thought his commission would be the usual six per cent. He informed me that the fee would be close to 10 per cent. After complaining, he said he would reduce it to eight per cent of the sales price. Is this legal? — H.M.F., Lester, Pa.

A — Unless you have a contract which states your broker's commission, he can charge what he wants. The fee of six per cent is what most brokers charge but they're not bound to it. Brokers usually charge 10 per cent for selling lots or tracts of land. Next time, make sure all fees and charges are part of the sales agreement.

New York Film Location

NEW YORK (AP) — This may be the year of the Mafia movie.

"The Godfather," from that very hot-selling novel by Mario Puzo, has finished shooting (film) and will be sprung in the spring. Beating it to the screen (if not the punch) is "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight," from Jimmy Breslin's book.

James Goldstone, the tall, bearded director of "Gang," shied from making comparisons with "the other" Mafia film—which he hasn't seen—and stressed there is no competition between the two despite the subject.

Speaking of the "idea of the film," he said "they're making a physical melodrama that almost glorifies the Mafia, picturing them as outside conventional society, but with their own morality, ethical, well-organized, highly-motivated and terribly efficient.

"This," he said of his own film, "is exactly the opposite. In this, they're stupid, bumbling, destructive. It's melodramatic tragedy versus farcical, in the sense of physical, comedy."

He noted another difference: "We were not harassed nor influenced."

"The Godfather" producer, Al Ruddy, had held a joint press conference last year with the Italian-American Civil Rights League, announcing the group's cooperation with the filmmakers and disclosing there would be no references to "Mafia" in that movie.

Goldstone speculated as to why "Gang" was not bothered. "First, because we're comedy. It behooves the Mafia to pretend they don't exist. But if their existence had to be known, they would rather be known as dumb screws. Then there is no fear of them.

"Secondly, I think there's a certain amount of respect and awe for Breslin."

"And, the whole thing is illustrative of the truth of our film: they're stupid, bumbling, neighborhood toughs."

The film was shot completely on location in New York. Location filming is a trait of Goldstone's, who shot "Winning" in Indiana and California, "Red Sky at Morning" in New Mexico, and "Brother John" in California. He's surely of the "new breed" of directors who dislike studio filming.

There were, however, some annoying labor troubles during the shooting, though, he said, "it was the only place to make 'The Gang'."

Femininity Makes Comeback

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Happily the female figure is making a comeback. It's a turn in fashion towards good taste that has great appeal for the woman who appreciates elegance, quality and fine detail.

"If you enjoy being a woman — look like yourself," said designer Odette Barsa. "Dress to enhance your femininity and feeling of loveliness."

Certainly femininity and the look of elegance have always been the forte of this designer and they are beautifully evident in her latest collection of at-home wear. The look is ladylike, the lines pure and simple, the shaping soft — contemporary designs in the casually elegant lifestyle of today.

Odette Barsa's newest styles are available just in time to give you a pretty change of pace from last season's madcap, high-camp loungewear. Feminine little looks in up-to-the-minute polyester. This fabric carries out the theme of softness without giving up comfort and easy care. The practical will love them for they are completely washable.

Picture yourself in a long, romantic robe patterned in smashing plaid. Take your choice of dramatic red and black or yellow and black. And all the special little detailing is there that adds so much to the over-all look.

In one design she bows the neck in curled black velvet ribbons and outlines the collar, sleeves and front opening in pristine white lace tatting.

Most of the robes are long, with a few notable exceptions. A zippy young peignoir swings gracefully from the shoulder. It's in a luscious velour in such colors as fire red, royal blue, glowing emerald.

Graceful and Lovely

The short swinger, left, creates lots of graceful movement from shoulders to wide, flirty hem. It is in washable polyester velour. Sleeves, collar and front opening of the long plaid robe, right, are outlined with nostalgic white lace tatting. Curly black velvet bow accents the neckline. (NEA)

Glazed Carrots Are Cooked In Ginger and Honey Glaze

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Before refrigeration, root vegetables were squirreled away for winter eating because they are ordinarily good keepers. They're also some of the best subjects for imaginative spicing. Carrots, parsnips and sweet potatoes are sweet vegetables and very good with the so-called "sweet spices" — cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, ginger and allspice. Cooks around the world also season them with herbs such as tarragon, marjoram, parsley or chervil. Easily prepared are Ginger Glazed Carrots, cooked with ginger and honey, Italian-style.

GINGER GLAZED CARROTS

- 6 large carrots
 - 2 cups water
 - 1 teaspoon ground ginger, divided
 - ³/₄ teaspoon salt, divided
 - ¹/₄ cup butter or margarine
 - ¹/₄ cup honey
- Peel carrots; cut into 2-inch long by ¹/₄-inch wide strips. In a medium saucepan combine water, ¹/₂-teaspoon of the ginger and ¹/₂-teaspoon of salt. Bring to boiling point. Add carrots and cook 8 to 10 minutes or until carrots are almost tender. Drain. In a medium skillet melt butter. Stir in honey, remaining ¹/₂-teaspoon ginger and remaining ¹/₄-teaspoon of salt. Add carrots and cook, stirring frequently for 8 minutes or until carrots are tender and nicely glazed. Makes 6 portions. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

It was decided to buy black boards for the school. The PTA voted to sponsor the Boy Scout troop again this year. A puppet show program was presented by the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade students. Refreshments were served following the meeting.

Feminists Argue About Alphabet

By LYNN SHERR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Five little girls need liberation from 21 bullying boys, according to a group of women from Suffolk County, Long Island.

The girls represent the vowels of the alphabet. The boys are the consonants. And all 26 are caricatured in a program called Alpha One used in schools throughout the country to teach first graders their ABC's.

To the Suffolk women, the program is blatantly sexist, because the girl-vowels are shown as weak, weeping creatures who must ask the chauvinist consonants for protection and support.

"It presents a very poor image for little girls," said Mrs. Lois Rodriguez, a kindergarten teacher—she does not use the program—and a spokeswoman for Suffolk Women's Liberation. The multimedia package, including books, filmstrips and posters, gives each letter a sex and a personality. The letter-people's interactions with one another in Alpha Land—how Miss A gets along with Mr. T, for instance—are meant to help children learn word formation from real-life situations.

What the feminist mothers are protesting are such too-real situations as the one where Mr. C and Mr. K determine which vowels belong to them. Says Mrs. Rodriguez, "The whole idea of girls belonging to boys is what's awful. The girls are never consulted."

Last week, she and four other women discussed their complaints with Dr. Bernard Kauderer, chief executive officer of New Dimensions in Education, Inc., which produces the program.

In an atmosphere he described as "somewhat hostile," Kauderer said he defended his Alpha One program on the basis that it aims at showing cooperation and sharing among all the letters. But he also promised that he would look into the charges, which he says involve just one-half of one per cent of the total Alpha One package.

He said that the kits, 8,000 of which are now in use are constantly revised and updated, and that cutting out the so-called chauvinist consonants could be done "for less than $5,000."

Kauderer also said that after the feminist demands became known, the company had received "a good deal of fan mail—mostly from teachers who say that it is not sexist."

He read one letter from a Dix Hills, N.Y., female first grade teacher, who maintained: "In this program, the vowels—the girls—happen to be the focal point of the program; for without the girls, no word can be formed."

Votes For Valentine Queen

Balloting for the group's Valentine Queen was done at the Monday evening meeting of Mu Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

The group, which met at the home of Mrs. Raymond Bell, plans to remember each boy at Butterfield Boys' Ranch in Marshall on his birthday. Mrs. Sam Young, service chairman announced.

The program entitled "The Garden" was presented by Mrs. Bill Green who also led the closing ritual following.

Attending the meeting as guests were Miss Diane Linville and Miss Donna Osborn.

Hostesses were Mrs. Green and Mrs. Bell.

Tailored Look

It's back to the tailored look for women's suits — wide laped jackets with flared pants, slung low on the hips, with man-tailored shirts. Make sure the accessories go with it. Try little boyish shoes, a cravat and a plain square leather pocketbook.

Garden Club Notes

OTTERVILLE — The Otterville Garden Club met Friday at the home of Mrs. A. Y. Burford with Mrs. W. L. Burford, Mrs. Walter Castle and Mrs. William Dunham assisting.

Dessert was served to 11 members and one guest, Mrs. Marvin Burford, Portland, Ore. The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. W. L. Burford. Mrs. Lewis Zumsteg, chaplain, brought the devotion and roll call was answered by "my favorite garden guide."

New business included plans for the club's annual family night to be held Feb. 8 at the American Legion Home.

Program chairman, Miss Lucille Wear, presented Mrs. Zumsteg, who delivered a program titled "Forecast of Beauty, Annuals and Perennials." She told of new flowers and vegetables for 1972.

Blue ribbons were won by Mrs. W. L. Burford and Mrs. William Dunham.

How To Get Rid Of Dog Hairs on Carpet

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — If Mrs. P. W. will use slightly wet sponge mop for going over her indoor-outdoor carpet, just as she would a broom, the long hairs will come up easily. The damp sponge seems to roll the hair off the rug. — MISS M.B.C.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mrs. P. W. that I take the attachments off my vacuum sweeper and just use the hose on my indoor-outdoor carpet. I work it back and forth and it removes my dog's white hairs from a dark green carpet. — MRS. E.A.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. P. W. will find the friction from the vacuum brush for hardwood floors will mat the dog hairs together and make them easier to remove from indoor-outdoor carpet. I use this brush on all my carpeting and think it does a better job than the carpet attachment. — Mrs. E. D.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — The buttons will not stay on my "wet look" coat and there are holes where the material has torn as a result of constantly resewing the buttons. Otherwise this coat is in very good condition. I hate to have it just hanging in the closet so would appreciate any suggestion or help. — CATHERINE

DEAR POLLY — Garden hose has a way of often being scattered all over the back yard. My husband bought some tires from a junk yard for his stock car and had a lot of rims left over. I painted one and hung it over our outside water spout and then wrapped the hose around it. No more messy garden hose in our yard. — MRS. N. W.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is to be looking around in a store and see a sign reading, "Handle at your own risk. If broken consider this sold," and the price tags are all on the bottoms or backs where they cannot be seen unless the article is picked up. — MRS. B. J. E.

Before putting my electric fan away for the winter I wrapped a piece of terry cloth around a six-inch stick, dipped this in hot, soapy water and cleaned the dust off all the hard-to-get to openings. A clean cloth was used to rinse these places with clear water. — CLARA

DEAR POLLY — A rubber band wrapped around the handle of a cooking utensil or spoon will keep it from slipping into the pan while preparing food or even when it is being served. — MARGARET

DEAR POLLY — If baby's bottle brush has been misplaced, a sure, quick way to get the bottles sparkling clean is to stuff a paper towel into the bottle, fill half full of water, rub the towel around the inside of the bottle with a fork and then sterilize. Sometimes this is even more effective than a bottle brush, especially for getting the very bottom of the bottle clean. — M. M.

DEAR POLLY — Rather than discard plastic air mattresses that have leaks or tears I use them to make rain ponchos for my husband and the children. They are great to keep in the car for emergency use. — MRS. J. L. J. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

AFS Student Talks To Altrusa Club

Miss Mariaco Iannini, American Field Service exchange student at Smith-Cotton was the guest speaker at the Altrusa Club of Sedalia Jan. 24 luncheon.

Mariaco presented a slide talk of her country, Colombia, South America and her home city Bogota, the nation's capital. The pictures illustrated many types of architecture dating centuries ago and today's modern styles.

Mariaco discussed her family life and what her parents do. Her father is an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, and she has six brothers and sisters. She also discussed where she goes to school, which is a private Catholic school. She said for many people the private schools are too expensive and the public schools are too crowded, so many people go without education.

Miss Opal O'Brian, vocational service committee chairman, introduced Mrs. Fred Davis, who in turn introduced Mariaco.

Mrs. Imogene Peoples, president, presided over the meeting.

Nile Show Highlights TV Viewing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC launched "Search for the Nile," a BBC series of six one-hour programs, Tuesday night in the two-hour time block it recently opened for weekly specials.

The first two programs, run before and after President Nixon's address on Vietnam, set the scene in leisurely fashion for the adventures of two British army lieutenants who in the mid-19th century set out on donkeys to discover the river's source. Narrator James Mason said finding the source was as important to the 1850s "as landing on the moon was to the 1960s."

Richard Francis Burton was a dashing, arrogant adventurer who had managed to enter the forbidden city of Mecca disguised as an Arab. Then he was determined to solve the age-old mystery of the Nile. He was joined in the difficult journey by a starchy, inflexible younger officer, John Speke.

The photography was impressive—much of it was shot in Africa. But the two hours relied for drama primarily on the unfriendly relationship between the two men.

Four more hour-long episodes will be shown on future Tuesday nights. It is undoubtedly an impressive re-creation of British history but it appears to be a more detailed account than will interest most Americans.

CBS's special, "I'm a Fan," was a light-hearted but often heavy-handed hour of comedy and music, all poking fun at the public's passion for sports. The emphasis was on TV sports-watching.

Dick Van Dyke, the host, was given little clever material. Carol Channing's material was far the best. She was funny as a woman relishing the gore at a hockey game and had a witty song while playing the lady at the loudspeaker paging a doctor at a football game.

Much of the material was tired, and the points of view were obvious. There were some interesting dance numbers, particularly one that kidded half-time shows at football games.

To make room for the President's speech, the networks pushed back broadcasts that followed by a half hour. Each network followed the address with brief reviews and picked up where they had left off before the interruption. NBC preempted "Nichols" for a panel discussion of the speech later in the evening. CBS added a half-hour special at the end of its late news shows.

Bookkeeper Admits Embezzling Guilt

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mrs. Dorris Palmer, 49, former office manager and bookkeeper of the Lithographers and Photoengravers Union Local 235, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court here Tuesday to a charge of embezzling union funds.

Mrs. Palmer admitted embezzling $1,082 from the union on June 21, 1967. Judge John W. Oliver deferred sentencing pending an investigation.

Sales Tax Increase Proposed in Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A bill which backers says will bring in $50 million in added revenue by raising the sales tax from 3 to 5 per cent was in the Senate today.

The measure, which would exempt food, drugs and agricultural, industrial and pollution control equipment, was introduced by Sen. Robert Bennett, R-Prairie Village.

He would have the state return to local governmental units $5 million of the extra money, to reduce property taxes.

Another sales tax bill, introduced earlier in the day in the House, would increase the levy from 3 per cent to 3½ per cent, with the additional money going to state and local governments.

The bill, by Rep. John Bower, R-McLouth, would do away with the extra half-cent levies voted by three cities in Kansas last year, and would distribute the extra money raised by the state to counties and cities. It was estimated this would be $30 million. But the bill would eliminate the $18 million in so-called residue which is distributed now to local units of government.

Gov. Robert Docking has said he would veto any sales tax increase.

The Senate Tuesday approved tentatively a $13.1 million supplemental appropriation bill requested by Docking. The bill includes $2.9 million to be used in building a minimum security penal institution for young offenders, at Topeka.

The appropriation bill and the three others were scheduled for final vote in the Senate this afternoon.

The other bills up for roll call would:

—Bring Kansas election laws into compliance with new 18-year-old voting rights.

—Change procedures for handling challenged ballots.

—Put the state under the Uniform Partnership Act.

The Kansas act against discrimination would be amended by a bill introduced Tuesday in the Senate. It would be changed to "eliminate and prevent discrimination, segregation or separation in housing."

The bill would expand the act to ban discrimination by sex in public accommodations except where "a distinction because of sex is necessary because of the intrinsic nature of such accommodation."

A bill passed by the Senate but killed by a House committee in 1971 was reintroduced by Sen. Tom Van Sickle, R-Fort Scott. It would require names of all persons getting general assistance payments be published in official county papers once each month.

War Issue's Politics in Nixon's Control

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon appears to have taken control of the war issue with his disclosure that the administration has long been pursuing a peace formula almost identical to that of his chief Democratic critics.

Nixon had, on several occasions, cautioned would-be 1972 challengers against relying on the war in South Vietnam as a campaign issue.

Tuesday night he told the nation why, disclosing that the administration has been talking secretly with North Vietnamese negotiators in a series of 13 Paris meetings dating back 30 months.

He said he has offered a six-month withdrawal timetable similar to one the administration vigorously opposed in Congress.

The disclosures cast Nixon, already a candidate for re-election, as the man who was there first, and demonstrated again the power of a president to shape the issues and the course of a campaign.

With the presidential primaries approaching, Democrats seeking nomination to run against Nixon have put increasing stress on the war as an issue, charging Nixon has not done enough to end U.S. involvement. Continuing that stance is going to be difficult if not impossible for any Democratic campaigner, at least in the immediate future.

Furthermore, Nixon's nationally broadcast speech disclosing the secret peace offer had a built-in rebuke for his critics:

"The truth is that we did respond to the enemy's plan, in the manner they (the enemy) wanted us to respond—secretly. In full possession of our complete response, the North Vietnamese publicly denounced us for not having responded at all. They induced many Americans in the press and the Congress into echoing their propaganda—Americans who could not know they were being falsely used by the enemy to stir up divisiveness in this country."

As the new year began, Nixon repeated his assertion that Vietnam would not be a major issue in the 1972 campaign, because we will have brought the American involvement to an end.

The major Democratic candidates with the exception of Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, have supported a war-policy amendment sponsored by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, advocating total U.S. withdrawal in exchange for prisoner release.

It passed the Senate three times last year over stiff White House opposition and each time administration loyalists blocked it in the House.

But Nixon said Tuesday night that the administration had proposed similar terms to the North Vietnamese—not once but three times.

He said the Communists have ignored an Oct. 11, 1971 offer including U.S. withdrawal within six months of an agreement for an exchange of all POWs and a cease-fire in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

The Mansfield amendment advocates withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Indochina within six months, contingent only upon the release of American prisoners, and urges a cease-fire.

The Nixon proposal also covers the political situation in South Vietnam. It offers new internationally supervised elections, with participation by the Communist National Liberation Front, and an agreement by President Nguyen Van Thieu to resign a month before the balloting.

Ironically, hours before Nixon disclosed his secret peace terms, Senate Democrats cautioned and overwhelmingly endorsed terms of the Mansfield amendment.

Mansfield said at that time a clear-cut Nixon peace initiative along those lines would be likely to strengthen the Republican president's political position.

He said that impact would be only incidental, that ending the war is the prime concern.

And he added that issues of unemployment and the economy are likely to be dominant in 1972 anyhow.

Q — Recently I heard over a local radio station that the League of Women Voters of Sedalia and the state was opposing the legislation of Senator Earl Blackwell regarding taxation. I attended a meeting recently where the President of the Sedalia League of Women Voters stated that the League did not approve or disapprove political issues. How is it that the League is now taking sides in this political issue? — A.O.B.

A — According to Mrs. Robert Edmonds, president of the League, the organization "never takes a stand for or against a candidate." However, she added, "We do certainly take a stand on issues but only after we have studied the pros and cons." Mrs. Edmonds said that the League has been studying taxation for quite some time. It has decided to oppose the recent petition drive for a public vote on every tax hike because of the cost and time the League feels such elections would involve. As supporters of a representative form of government, the League feels elected representatives should have authority in tax matters, she said.

Mrs. Edmonds said you were probably referring to the League's recent Voter Service meeting whose purpose was to disseminate information and present both sides of the issue and not to take sides.

She added that the League uses a list of criteria before taking a stand. The list can be obtained from Mrs. Edmonds.

Q — I have lived in Sedalia 19 years and on Sunday people attending Sacred Heart Church have always parked on the school side of Third Street and Vermont. But on a recent Sunday an officer had ticketed every car on both streets and with another church just around the corner, there are not enough parking places unless you walk several blocks after parking. I always thought these signs were just for when school was going on and did not apply to Sunday. When did they change it? — E. C.

A — Police Chief William Miller said there had been no change in the law nor in police policy on this matter. He explained that a police officer new to the department was sent to the area to give a legitimate traffic ticket on the complaint of a local resident. The signs on those streets make no distinction between Sunday or other days.

The officer learned when he returned to the police station that tickets traditionally were not given for parking on those streets during non-school hours. Miller added that a sergeant contacted all the owners of the ticketed cars and informed them that the tickets were void and fines would not have to be paid. To avoid a recurrence of such a situation, Miller said he had requested the City Engineer to consider making the signs more specific.

Q — Will kindergartens be established in each area grade school or will one kindergarten, be established in one school when the junior high school is finished? — Mrs. H.M.

A — School Board President George Thompson said that present plans call for establishing kindergartens in each elementary school following the opening of the new school. He explained that a vacancy in classroom space will occur as seventh-graders leave each elementary school.

The concept of locating all kindergartens in one school was a suggestion made by the federal department of Health, Education and Welfare. The one-school plan, however, will not be implemented here, Thompson said.

Q — Since I moved here three years ago, I have repeatedly seen the following happen. Then it happened in front of my house. The garbage man spilled some of the trash as he went to put it in his truck. He didn't pick up any of it, just left it laying in the street.

My trash is put in sacks before being put in the can so it isn't loose. I'd feel it was my job to clean up the mess if it were my fault. I've heard other people comment on the same thing. — Mrs. W.B.A.

Vernon Ditton, superintendent of streets, said this was the first complaint of this nature he had received. He said that he would inform his men to avoid such a situation in the future.

Ditton added, however, that many times plastic bags either leak or are torn open by dogs and under such conditions his men generally don't have the time to clean up every spill. To avoid a recurrence of the problem, Ditton recommended that he be called as soon as such a situation occurs so he can investigate the matter.

Ann Landers

How Formal Should Relationship Be?

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you stated that your married daughter does not have a key to your place and you don't have a key to hers. You made it clear that neither drops in on the other uninvited and you are guests in each other's homes.

I was shocked by this public confession of formality between a mother and her daughter. Don't you realize that a child is a child all of her life and marriage does not change it?

I have two daughters, both married, and an unmarried son. The girls come and go as they please and it's always a pleasure to see them. I would consider it an insult if they felt they had to telephone me before coming over. The arm's length arrangement you describe suggests a cold and formal relationship. It would be very interesting to know what your daughter thinks about being a guest in her mother's home. — From Missouri

Dear From: Only my daughter can answer that question, so I asked her. Here's Margo — herself a mother of three children:

Dear From: Relatives who wander in and out of each other's homes strike me as being long on time and short on manners. To announce one's visit in advance — instead of just popping in — is nothing more than an acknowledgment of love's elder brother, respect.

It seems to me that one of the greatest favors a mother can do for her children is to raise them to be independent. One way to build independence is by discouraging continuous traffic in and out of one another's homes.

Your conclusion that a policy of no dropping-in is the hallmark of a cold and formal relationship is erroneous. To my way of thinking, it denotes consideration for another person's time and privacy. I would do no less for a friend — and my mother and I are very good friends indeed.

Dear Ann Landers: We, the 32 undersigned members of the Golden Crescent Square Dance Club of Lorain, Ohio, take strong exception to the letter from the woman in Billings who blamed square dancing for her husband's involvement with another woman.

Square dancing is one of the cleanest, healthiest, most wholesome pastimes in the world. To knock this joyous tradition is an insult to the thousands of people who enjoy it. Square dancing should not be condemned because one husband in Billings can behave himself. Set the record straight. — Perturbed Members

Dear Perturbed Members: Far be it for me to knock square dancing. Some of my best friends are square dancers. The fault lies with that guy in Billings and not with the dance. The scoundrel would have found a playmate in a church choir — if one were available. I am sorry I failed to make the point. My apologies to all the clean, healthy, wholesome square dancers everywhere.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a physician who must take mild issue with your advice to the woman to consult a plastic surgeon for a face-lift.

While the counsel was not wrong, it was misleading and discriminatory. Plastic surgeons are not the only ones who do face-lifting. Other surgeons — otolaryngologists, head and neck surgeons, general surgeons and maxillo-facial surgeons — also perform this type of reconstruction.

Thus when you advise readers to see a plastic surgeon you are inadvertently making referrals of one kind of doctor and excluding the others. I hope you will, in the name of fairness, make this clear in a subsequent column and instead of suggesting a "plastic surgeon," say "a qualified surgeon." Thank you. — J.R.L. (M.D.), Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

Dear J.R.L.: Here's the subsequent column and I appreciate your having called this to my attention.

Mullendore To Receive Settlement

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Linda Vance Mullendore will receive $3 million of an $8 million insurance settlement resulting from the mysterious death of her husband in 1970.

United Family Life Insurance Co., of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Mullendore chose to settle for $8 million rather than fight out an $18.75 million lawsuit she had filed against the firm. United Family Life had refused to pay three, $5 million life insurance policies on Mullendore's life.

He was beaten and shot to death in 1970. The case is unsolved.

U.S. District Court Judge Allen E. Barrow Tuesday ordered that Mrs. Mullendore receive $3 million. His ruling came at a hearing for final settlement of the case, and there were no objections to the division of the money.

The balance of the money, minus about $500,000 which had been paid to two Georgia banks to pay off two loans, went into a savings account to pay nearly $12 million in debts owned by Mullendore's estate.

Judge Barrow will preside over an early February hearing where receivers for the Mullendore estate are to outline a plan to save the 55,000-acre holdings of Oklahoma's cattle baron.

Rival Plant Discussed At Meeting

(Democrat-Capital Service)

SWEET SPRINGS — Bill Tweed, manufacturing supervisor for Rival Manufacturing Co., here, was the guest speaker at a special Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting Monday night. The event was attended by over 150 persons.

Tweed said that Rival Manufacturing Co., was founded in Kansas City in 1932 and, as the demand for its products increased, opened plants in Sedalia and Clinton. The plant here is the fourth in the Rival chain.

He explained that Rival finds certain advantages in locating its plants in smaller communities, citing good locations and labor forces among the key factors.

Special guest at the meeting were Rival representatives including Charles Roots, vice-president and treasurer, and Mrs. Roots; Dave Wunderlich, personnel manager, and Mrs. Wunderlich. The preceding are for Kansas City. Tweed and his wife; Larry Avey, Buckner, plant manager; and Vern Rodick, manager of the Sedalia plant, and Mrs. Rodick.

Ralph Kock, out-going president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting and introduced the guest speaker.

Hope, Skepticism From POW Families

"I think it would be great. I don't think it will through," he said. "I think a political move. It's an election year, isn't it?"

"It is essential that the needless and divisive debate that has wracked this country for the past two years on this issue now be silenced."

Duke Calls in Officials

Two Hospitalized After Minn., O-State Brawl

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Wayne Duke, Big Ten commissioner, ordered Minnesota and Ohio State officials to confer with him today on a brawl that stopped a basketball game between the schools Tuesday night, leaving two players hospitalized.

The game was halted with 36 seconds to play, and Ohio State was awarded a 50-44 victory that gave the sixth-ranked Buckeyes first place in the Big Ten race with a 4-0 record and dropped 16th-ranked Minnesota to 4-1.

Three Ohio State basketball players were taken to University of Minnesota hospital after the game—starters Luke Witte and Mark Miner and reserve Mark Wagar.

The 7-foot Witte and Wagar were held overnight for observation. Witte suffered lacerations over his chin and eyebrows. Wagar also had a cut over his eye. X-rays showed there were no serious injuries.

Taylor and Coach Bill Musselman of Minnesota had differing views on what triggered the fight before a crowd of 17,775 at Williams Arena.

"Three Minnesota players were bad mouthing our boys at the half," said Taylor.

Musselman said Witte hit Minnesota guard Bob Nix, 6-3, on the head as the half ended.

"We went up eight points as the game was ending," said Taylor.

This, Taylor felt, frustrated the Gophers.

Just before the fight broke out, Nix hit a long jump shot to pull the Gophers to 50-44. The fight erupted 11 seconds later, under the Ohio State basket.

Witte was going in for a shot when Clyde Turner fouled him, and officials ejected Turner from the game.

Minnesota's Corky Taylor said Witte spit at him when he went over to help the Buckeye player up off the floor.

At this point, witnesses said, Taylor knelt Witte in the groin. Within seconds, nearly every player from both teams was out on the floor throwing punches.

Police swarmed onto the floor as the fight broke out, pulling players apart and stopping some fans who stormed onto the court.

Duke said he regretted that "the situation marred an otherwise fine Big Ten contest. After consultation with both coaches, it was decided in the best interest of safety for the players and fans to terminate the game at that point."

Wardell Jackson scored 16 points for Ohio State and Witte contributed 14 with 13 rebounds. Turner led Minnesota with 13.

Maryland, No. 18, got 29 points from sophomore Tom McMillen as the Terps defeated Buffalo 82-58. Bob Vartanian pumped in 27 points for the Bulls, who were within three points early in the second half before Maryland's scoring surge.

In other major college games Tuesday night, Villanova defeated St. Bonaventure 87-72; Michigan topped Iowa 90-86; Texas Tech beat Texas 79-68; Alabama whipped Georgia Tech 99-68; Southern Methodist downed Arkansas 85-51; Boston University edged Connecticut 70-67.

It was also Louisiana Tech over Southern Mississippi 91-63; Texas A&M topping Texas Christian 81-74; William & Mary beating Virginia Military 76-59; Tulane stopping Loyola of New Orleans 73-69; and Oral Roberts downing Lamar 109-95.

In the West Weber State defeated Northern Arizona 86-68; Denver beat Regis 86-65; California at Santa Barbara slipped by Los Angeles Loyola 78-75; San Diego State topped San Diego University 87-69, and San Jose State downed San Francisco 69-65.

Grems Notch Key Victory Over Stover

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

STOVER — They say that the third time is the charm, but Sacred Heart basketball coach Tom Beer and his Gremlins had to wait one extra time to beat the Stover Bulldogs.

Stover had captured the last three meetings between the two teams, which stretched back to last season's Kaysinger Conference battle on the Gremlins' home court.

But Bill Freund and company handed Stover their first conference loss of the season Tuesday night here, 80-64.

"Have you ever seen Freund any better than he was tonight," Beer kept saying after the game. Freund played one of his best high school games ever in the win as he tossed in 10 of the Grems' first 14 points, and was well on his way toward what turned out to be a 27-point performance.

The win was more important from the standpoint of the Kaysinger Conference standings, where Sacred Heart, Stover and LaMonte all entered Tuesday's play with 4-0 league marks.

With the Grems' win over Stover and LaMonte's 65-58 victory over defending Kaysinger Conference champion Cole Camp, Sacred Heart and the Vikings are headed for a Feb. 11 showdown in LaMonte, a game that could well determine the league cage champion.

LaMonte takes on Lincoln Friday night in Lincoln in the only conference game involving either the Vikings or the Grems before their February confrontation.

Stover had defeated Sacred Heart in their last three meetings. The Bulldogs took third place away from the Gremlins in the Kaysinger Conference Tournament in November.

Stover posted two of their biggest wins of the 1970-71 season over Sacred Heart; once in conference play and the other in the championship game of the Lincoln Class S Regional playoffs.

But Tuesday night belonged to Sacred Heart as they jumped out to a quick 6-0 lead and were never headed in their bid for their fifth straight league conquest.

With Freund leading the way, Sacred Heart forged out to a 19-11 margin as the first quarter ended.

Freund heated up for seven more points in the second period and Sacred Heart carried a 35-38 lead into the dressing room.

It seemed in the first half as if fate was against Stover's bid for another victory over the Gremlins as many of their shots rolled around the rim or banged back and forth before popping out of the basket.

With two of his starters, Steve Karigan and Bill Straka, in foul trouble with three each as teams retired at the half, Beer was forced to bring in Keith Fischer and Mark Dunham.

Fischer and Dunham saw extensive action in the third and fourth periods, and both responded well spelling teammates. Dunham checked in with six points and nine rebounds in the second half.

Midway through the third quarter, Sacred Heart was riding atop a 13-point lead, but Phillip and Paul Marriott, a pair of sharp shooting cousins, pulled the Bulldogs to within five.

But Sacred Heart, hitting virtually everything that they put up, expanded their lead to 11 points, 45-34, with 3:36 left in the stanza.

Stover could trim only one point off that margin as the quarter closed with Sacred Heart in command, 52-42.

The Bulldogs made another strong bid in the final period, but Sacred Heart was able to hold off the two Marriotts, who accounted for 48 of Stover's 64 points.

Freund's three-point play with 4:49 showing in the last quarter, gave the Gremlins a 64-51 lead and the rest was almost a down hill run.

Center Jeff Karigan followed Freund in the scoring column with 16; guard Dan Borchers added 14.

Phillip Marriott checked in with 26 points for Stover, while cousin Paul added 22. However, they were the only two Stover players in double figures, as the rest of the Bulldogs failed to balance the attack.

The Grems also won the junior varsity contest, 43-39, as they wiped out a five-point Stover lead in the final quarter.

Ray Young came off the bench and sank three key free throws in the final 52 seconds to stave off any late Stover attack.

Tony Lock led the Gremlin jayvees with 14 points; Randy Johnson and Jim McMullin added 10 each.

Stover's Ronnie Hodges shared the game's scoring honor with Lock as he checked in with 14. Robert Mueller was also in double figures hitting for 10.

The girls volleyball game was the only thing that Stover could salvage and they won it in easy fashion, 42-14. It was the 133rd victory for veteran coach Bob Shackelford over his seven and one-half year career, which has been split between Stover and LaMonte. Shackelford has lost only 15 games during that time.

Attending to the Injured

An unidentified University of Minnesota official, left, attends to Ohio State's Luke Witte, who was injured during a brawl that broke out in the late seconds of the Ohio State-Minnesota game, Tuesday night, in

Pickens' 38 Not Enough

(Democrat-Capital Service)

OSCEOLA — For the second time this season, Eddie Pickens has scored 38 points in a losing effort for the Lincoln Cardinals.

Tuesday night, Pickens, the Kaysinger Conference's leading scorer, netted 38 against Osceola, but the Cards lost a 60-59 heart breaker in overtime.

Earlier this season, Pickens poured in 38 points against Hermitage in a 66-48 loss.

Lincoln was leading by seven with just over three minutes left in the contest, but the Indians tied it with three seconds showing on the clock, 57-57, throwing the contest into overtime. The Cards jumped out in front with the first score of the overtime, but saw their hopes dwindle as they lost their 17th game in 19 outings.

Despite the 38-point performance of Pickens, only three other Lincoln players were able to enter the scoring column.

The Cards used a half-court press that forced many Osceola turn overs in the early going of the game, but the Indians regrouped and put together a better attack for the press and managed to post the victory.

Jack McLerra, Bill Barnes, Ed Wittell and John Freeman hit in double figures for Osceola in their balanced attack. McLerra was the leading scorer with 17, Barnes followed with 14, Wittell and Freeman added 13 and 12 in that order.

Osceola built up a 28-21

Cosell Is Keynote Speaker at Banquet

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Howard Cosell, ABC television sports commentator, will be keynote speaker at the 101 Banquet, Kansas City's third annual salute to professional football Feb. 14. Jack Wheeler, chairman, announced Tuesday.

A third member will be inducted into the Kansas City Chiefs Hall of Fame at the banquet. Outstanding offensive and defensive players from both the American and National Football Conferences, voted by 101 sportswriters and broadcasters throughout the country, will be honored.

advantage at the intermission, but Lincoln came storming back in the third quarter outscoring the Indians, 19-9, to take a 40-37 lead into the fourth period.

Osceola won the junior varsity opener, 62-36. Roger Ellis and Bill Brown had 14 each for the Indians; Keith Mellen led all scorers with 15 for Lincoln.

Lincoln's next outing will be a Kaysinger Conference battle, when they host LaMonte Friday night.

Rollings Heats Up To Lead Mustangs

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist senior guard Bobby Rollings hit a torrid 11 of 16 from the field while junior reserve Jack Trout came off the bench to score 14 points with 9 rebounds in the second half to lead the Mustangs past Arkansas 85-71 Tuesday night.

Rollins had the game high of 23 points. Arkansas's leading scorer Martin Terry was in foul trouble most of the night and wound up with 16 points.

Could Link NBA Owner With Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Basketball Association knows of complaints that a team owner may be connected to organized crime and is investigating the situation, Commissioner Walter Kennedy says.

Kennedy made the statement Tuesday in an exchange with Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., whose Senate subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly, is studying a bill to exempt antitrust laws and permit the leagues to merge.

The panel postponed further testimony until Feb. 22.

Ervin questioned Kennedy after an assertion by another congressman, Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., that Cincinnati Royals' owner Jerry Jacobs had organized crime links through a holding company called Emprise Corp.

Replying to Ervin's query about what action, if any was being taken on the matter, Kennedy said:

"I deeply resent the inference that the office of the commissioner of the NBA is totally unaware of what is going on and not doing anything about it."

"We're not turning our back on it," Kennedy told Ervin. Steiger, a surprise witness, said Emprise operates a number of subsidiaries known as "Sportservices."

"Their history," Steiger said of Jacobs and his brother, Max, operating head of the Royals, "is replete with reports of business associations with underworld and organized crime figures."

Also testifying on the merger bill was American Basketball Commissioner Jack Dolph who said pro basketball's troubles had moved into the critical stage.

Citing the heavy deficits that ABA owners were incurring in the battle for high priced college stars, Dolph said "to lose sight of the main issue at hand, the merits of the merger, can sound the death knell of professional league basketball as we know it today, as surely as if relief were denied."

Arena a Must For Expansion To Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lt. Gov. William Morris of Missouri thinks that the group he heads is in a strong position to get a National Hockey League franchise for the Kansas City area in 1974.

But Morris said Tuesday the franchise is contingent on a new arena.

Morris, and his associate, J.J. Coen, have said they could afford to pay $800,000 for a year-around lease on an arena. This would finance a $10 million structure. The lowest bid received was $11.5 that included finance charges but did not include land.

Land is available at the Jackson County Sports Complex but some way would have to be found to finance the final $1.5 million in construction costs, Morris said.

Kansas City Arena Ltd., an organization headed by Stan Glazer, has announced it has funds to build an arena at the stockyards but would not go ahead unless it has controlling interest in the hockey franchise.

Harrisonville Mark Extended to 15-0

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HARRISONVILLE — The Harrisonville Wildcats, one of the top Class M teams in Western Missouri, kept their season's record unblemished Tuesday night with a 68-40 win over Nevada.

It was the 15th straight victory for the Wildcats against no defeats.

Harrisonville opened up a 16-8 lead as the first period closed, but their 30-point output in the second stanza was more than enough for the victory as they held a 46-14 lead at the end of the first half.

"I wasn't too pleased with our play," said coach Redford Reichert, "when you outmatch a team as much as we did Nevada, you tend to play a little sloppy," he added.

Butch Allen, Gordon Hicker and Mat Knowlton were all in double figures for the Wildcats with 25, 16 and 11 points respectively.

Mark Gordon was the only Nevada Tiger in double figures with 15. It was the 11th loss for Nevada, who has won only four of their 15 starts this season.

In the junior varsity contest, Mike Dyer netted a field goal in the last three seconds that pulled Harrisonville in, 53-51. Dyer had 13 for the winners; Jim Fryrear tossed in 17 for Nevada.

Harrisonville takes their 15-0 mark into the Annual Clinton Invitational Tournament, which opens tonight. Harrisonville has the top seed.

SFCC Rides Late Steal

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan. — Freshman guard Brent Yates stole an in-bounds pass and fed Jimmy Lassiter who scored from 15 feet with three seconds showing on the clock and gave State Fair Community College an 85-83, come-from-behind victory over Johnson County, Kan., Junior College, here Tuesday night.

"Just as quick as that it was all over," said Bill Barton, who was still somewhat stunned after the tight battle.

The victory pushed State Fair's overall mark to 11-9 for the season; they have won eight of their last 10 contests. It was the second time this season that the Roadrunners had defeated the Kansans. Johnson County was an 88-83 Roadrunner victim in the Missouri State Fairgrounds' Agriculture Building, when SFCC opened the 1971-72 campaign on Nov. 16.

State Fair had to battle back from a 44-37 deficit at the half, as Johnson County blustered the nets for 20 of their 37 shots from the field in the opening 20 minutes of play.

"We discussed our defense at the break," Barton said, "and we came out in the second half and did a much better job of covering... that's what really won it for us... our defense."

State Fair put the ball in the air 43 times in each half, but it only found the mark in the first stanza on 16 times. The Roadrunners' second-half shooting was much better as they connected on 21 of their 43 attempts, for just under 50 per cent.

Barton saw three of his starters reach the 20-point plateau — Lassiter pumped in 23 for team honors, while center Clarence Hampton added 22 and guard Kevin Arand notched 20. Hampton also hauled in 22 of the team's 47 rebounds.

Terry Atkinson was the game's leading scorer with 24 for the Kansans. Mike Jerdine added 21. Bev Mitchell checked in with 15 and Sylvester Winfield netted 12.

"We may be on a hot streak now, but we can't slack up a bit with Fort Scott, Kan., coming in Thursday night," the SFCC cage mentor added.

Game time for Thursday's encounter will be at 8 p.m.

Eastern All-Stars Earn Bumps in 3-2 Conquest

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Don't tell the East players that the National Hockey League All-Star game isn't a rough one.

Defenseman Brad Park took a three-stitch cut above his right eye, Phil Esposito was shaken up in a scramble in front of the goal and defenseman Bobby Orr took a Bobby Hull slap shot in his midsection.

But while the East All-Stars got most of the bumps Tuesday night before a crowd of 15,658 at Minnesota's Metropolitan Sports Center, they also got most of the goals and skated off with a 3-2 victory in the Silver Anniversary of the game. Esposito and Orr, Boston's high scoring super stars teamed up for the winning goal at 1:09 of the third period for their first All-Star points.

Park, the New York Ranger defenseman, was cut as Chicago's Bobby Hull followed through on a shot against the East goal and grazed Park's head with his stick.

Park left the game for stitches, returned shortly and fed a breakaway pass to Johnny McKenzie of Boston for the tying goal at 18:45 of the second period.

"You don't want to sit in this game," said Park. "You don't want to get too cold. You want to get back in and play."

Orr doubled over after stopping a Hull shot late in the game, then while he was skating off he smothered another shot by Dennis Hull.

"That second one was more in desperation than anything else," said Orr, who was named one of the game's three stars along with Hull and East goalie Gilles Villeneuve.

"Orr does it all out there," said Villeneuve, who held the West scoreless for 1½ periods after Hull, in the first period, and Philadelphia's Simon Nolet, in the second, beat Montreal's Ken Dryden for the West goals.

The East, which got two goals off Minnesota's Gump Worsley and one off Chicago's Tony Esposito, spotted the West to a 2-0 edge before climbing back into contention as Jean Ratelle of New York blasted in a shot from above a faceoff circle at 3:18 of the second period.

The victory gave the East a 2-1 record since the NHL abandoned its formula of having the previous year's Stanley Cup champion playing the NHL All-Stars.

Vikings Keep Up Pace In League Cage Race

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLE CAMP — LaMonte remained deadlocked with Sedalia Sacred Heart in first place in the Kaysinger Conference basketball standings here Tuesday night with a 65-58 win over Cole Camp.

Both LaMonte and Sacred Heart are riding atop the standings with 5-0 records and are heading on a collision course Feb. 11 in LaMonte.

LaMonte, who stretched their overall record to 15-2, tops in the league with the win, saw junior Darrell Oswald hit his first five field goal attempts in the opening period. The Vikings forged out a 21-14 lead behind Oswald in the opening period.

Oswald topped all scorers in the contest with 23; Glyn Bennett, Lee Keen and Jim Ripley were also in double figures with 17, 16, and 14 respectively for LaMonte.

Cole Camp, who was playing without their top scorer Roger Donnell through most of the contest, was led in the scoring department by Walter Heisterberg and Ron Miesner, who canned 18 and 13 in that order.

Donnell saw only limited action in the second quarter; he suffered an ankle injury in Friday night's game with Lincoln.

"We did a good job holding down (Jim) Walden and Bennett, but Oswald and Keen really hurt us. As a team, LaMonte shot something like 60 per cent in the first half... they really had the momentum," said Bob Farrington, coach of the Blue Birds.

"We felt that we had to slow down Walden and Bennett in order to win... we did a pretty good job, but those other two (Keen and Oswald) have really improved," Farrington added.

Cole Camp trailed at the intermission, 38-30, and at the end of the third quarter, 51-44.

The Blue Birds were able to pull to within four with only two minutes to go in the contest, but that is as close as the Vikings would allow.

Cole Camp won the junior varsity contest and the volleyball opener, but it was of little salvation for Farrington, who saw his team drop their eighth game in 19 starts.

Green Ridge Tops Otterville, 64-49

(Democrat-Capital Service)

GREEN RIDGE — Green Ridge posted their sixth win of the season Tuesday night over Otterville with a 64-49 victory.

John Miller and Steve Aker gave the Tigers the scoring power with 21 and 16 in that order.

Otterville had trouble with Green Ridge's press as the Tigers managed to steal the ball 13 times in the contest.

The Eagles were also unable to get the ball inside and tried to get it down with their outside shooting.

Green Ridge had the strength on their offensive boards, pulling down 21 caroms that resulted in second attempts.

The Tigers trailed at the end of the first quarter, 9-6, but held a 24-19 margin at the half. They went on to outscore Otterville in the second half, 40-30, to post their sixth victory in 19 outings.

In double figures for Otterville were Larry Landreth with 16 and Jack Deuschle, who followed with 15.

Otterville nipped Green Ridge in the junior varsity contest, 53-52. Randy Schilb was the top scorer for Otterville with 19. Jay Purchase led the Tigers with 10.

Green Ridge doesn't see action again until Monday, when they take on first-seeded Sacred Heart in the opening round of the Smithton Tournament at 7 p.m.

Long Island in East

NHL Realignment Set

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors took the easy way out of its realignment hassle and now Long Island and Atlanta, the two newest member clubs, know what they're up against.

After kicking around various suggestions to divide the 16 clubs into four divisions of four teams each, the governors chose the simple solution of assigning the new teams to the already existing East and West Divisions.

Long Island got the short end of the straw by being sentenced to the east where it will compete with five pre-expansion established teams along with Buffalo and Vancouver. Atlanta was assigned to the west—an all expansion division except for the Chicago Black Hawks.

"I consider that this constitutes a commitment for two seasons through 1974-75 when we will add two more teams," said Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL. "I'm quite satisfied with the arrangement. My personal preference was the other way but remember, it's not my dollars at stake. I understand why they weren't for it."

Campbell said all but one of the 14 member clubs had agreed on a proposed realignment into four divisions of four teams each last November when Long Island and Atlanta were first granted franchises. But unanimous approval is needed to put any realignment into effect.

"Some clubs changed their minds," said Campbell. "I think as many as six were opposed to the four division concept. And two clubs were most assertive in their opposition."

Long Island and Atlanta were permitted to sit in on the governors' meeting as non-voting but most interested spectators. Their opinions were not solicited.

"They were not asked," said Campbell. "they were assigned."

The league president said he thought some of the opposition to the realignment into four divisions would have meant in two years when the NHL adds two more teams, another shuffle dividing 18 clubs would have to be faced.

Among the cities that have expressed interest in the next expansion are Kansas City, Cleveland and Washington D.C. on to the second and third places respectively. Northeastern Junior College, Sterling, Colo., and Ferrum Junior College, Ferrum, Va., are the number four and five teams again in this week's voting.

Lead See-Saws But Knicks Win

NEW YORK (AP) — "How could we blow a lead like that?" wondered Dave DeBusschere of the New York Knicks.

"They (the Boston Celtics) must be saying that, too," said his teammate, Eddie Mast, after the Knicks had blown a 20-point second-quarter lead, fallen behind by 11 points in the final period, then rallied for a 109-106 National Basketball Association victory Tuesday night.

It was DeBusschere's 18-foot jump shot from the left side with 12 seconds remaining that finally settled the see-saw contest.

"I didn't want the fans to leave early," he kidded.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Milwaukee walloped Seattle 123-91. Golden State downed Cleveland 117-111. Atlanta beat Buffalo 123-110. Houston trimmed Portland 118-104, and Los Angeles took Phoenix 129-119.

DeBusschere's jumper snapped a 106-106 deadlock, and Walt Frazier, game high scorer with 35 points, added a free throw with two seconds left after he recovered a missed Boston shot. White led the Celtics with 33 points, while John Havlicek had 22 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists.

Bob Dandridge's 30 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 26 paced Milwaukee's victory over Seattle's injured SuperSonics. Player-coach Len Wilkens of Seattle didn't play because of a hand injury and his replacement, Lee Winfield, suffered a leg injury in the third quarter.

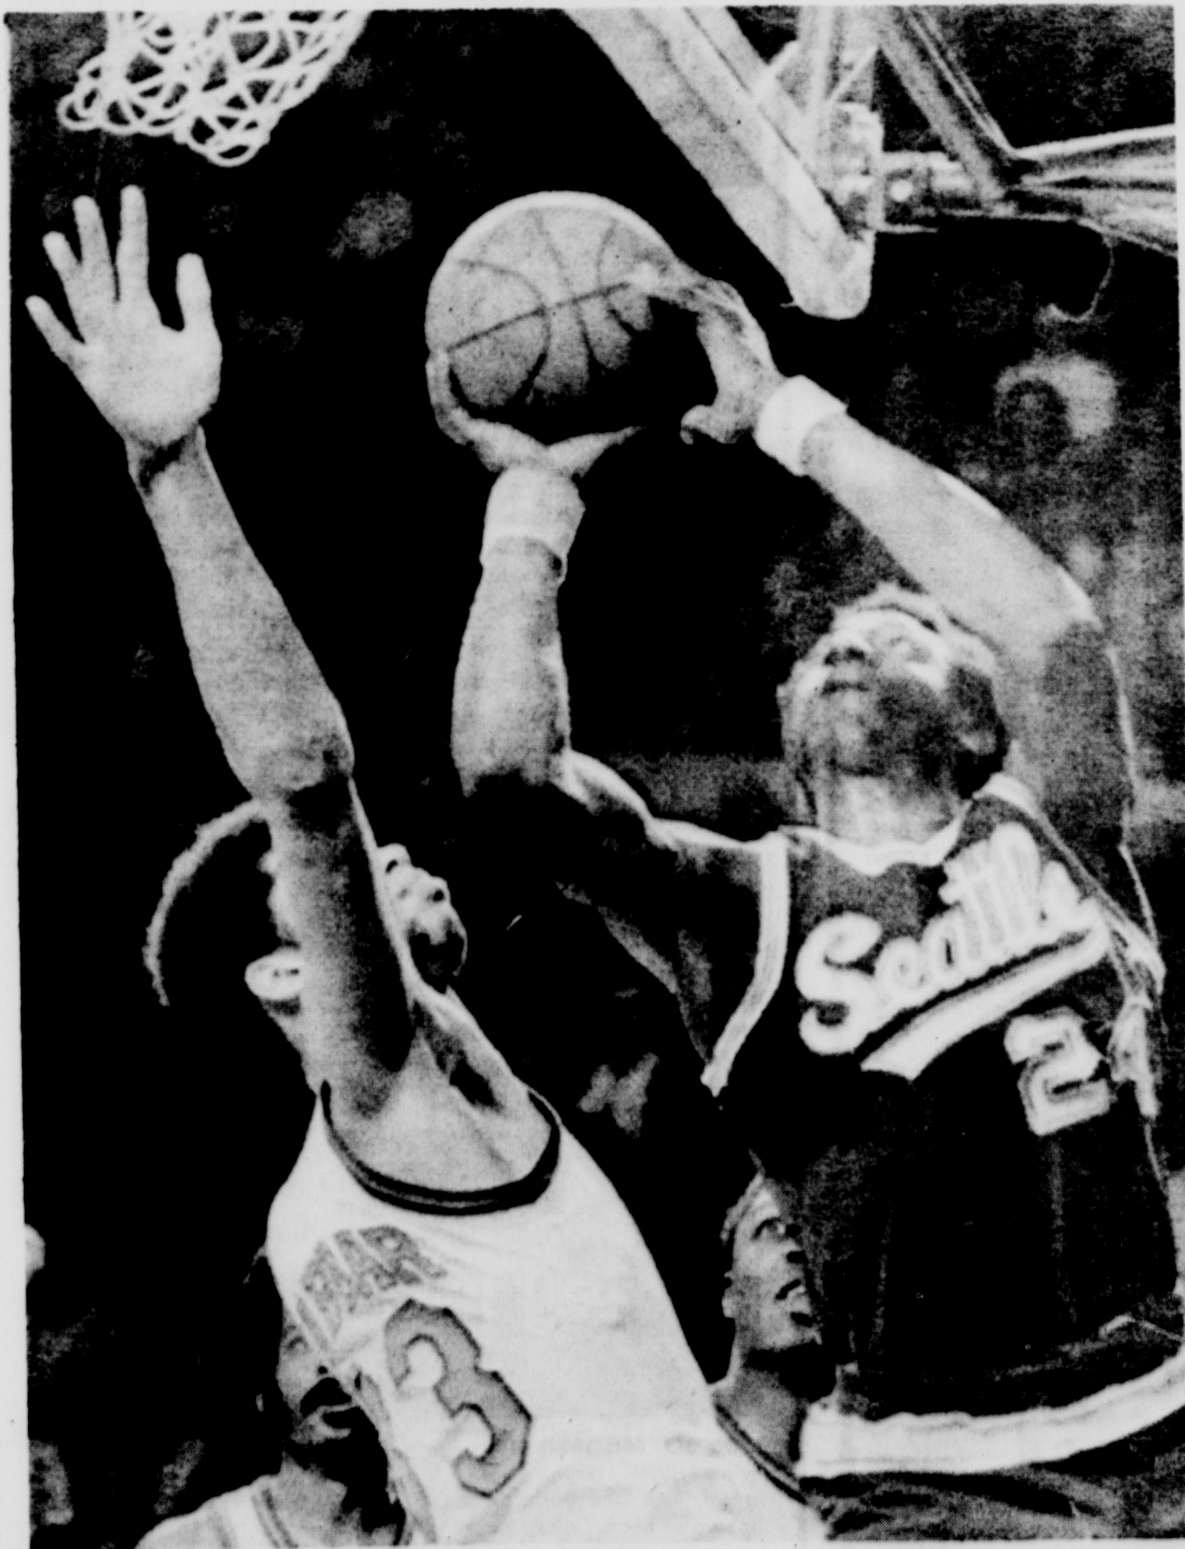

The loss dropped Seattle 1½ games behind second-place Golden State in the Pacific Division. The Warriors, led by Cazzie Russell's 35 points and Jim Barnett's season-high of 29, handed Cleveland its 11th consecutive setback.

Rookie Austin Carr, sidelined since Dec. 8 with a leg injury, returned to the Cavaliers' lineup and scored 23 points.

Pete Maravich's eight quick points in the second period helped Atlanta break loose from a 37-36 lead and gain a commanding 61-42 halftime advantage over Buffalo. Maravich finished with 28 points and Lou Hudson added 26 for the Hawks.

With Elvin Hayes and Rudy Tomjanovich combining for 42 points, Houston rocketed to a 95-59 lead against Portland with 3:45 remaining in the third period, then withstood a belated rally by the Trail Blazers. Hayes wound up with 27 points and Tomjanovich had 20.

Gail Goodrich fired in 33 points, sparking a second-half Los Angeles comeback that carried the Lakers past Phoenix.

UMR Student Invents Own Rotary Engine

(Democrat-Capital Service)

ROLLA — An engine with only nine moving parts has been invented by Frank D. Statkus, a graduate student in the University of Missouri - Rolla mechanical and aerospace engineering department.

The rotary engine prototype, with eight combustion chambers, is the thesis project for Statkus' master's degree in aerospace engineering. He received his B.S. degree from UMR last summer.

"I started working on the engine two years ago," Statkus says, "but it's only been recently that I've had any time to devote to the project."

According to Bruce P. Selberg, associate professor of aerospace engineering, and Statkus' adviser, "The prototype is near completion and he should have it running in about a month."

Statkus has computed that his rotary engine will have 64 horsepower at 1,000 revolutions per minute. The prototype engine is air cooled, 15 inches in diameter by six inches deep and weighs only 50 pounds.

There are a number of differences between a conventional reciprocating engine and this new invention. It is expected to have higher horse power for the size of the engine because it will have 16 power strokes per revolution of the output shaft instead of only four as in the usual internal combustion engine.

It has no spark ignition system but uses glow plugs kept continuously hot. It continuously fires any type of combustible fuel such as conventional gasoline, unleaded gas, white gas and possibly propane gas. "We expect the engine to burn fuel more

Inspect New Engine

Frank Statkus, left, University of Missouri-Rolla graduate student in aerospace engineering, and Ken Mirly, mechanical engineering lab manager at UMR, inspect the rotary engine designed and built by Statkus. The prototype, built of aluminum, is expected to provide a new and better source of power.

efficiently than the reciprocating engine, which will result in a lower pollution rate," Statkus states.

The engine design (patent pending) was recently on display for a week at the annual conference of the Society of Automotive Engineers in Detroit. Statkus, who also attended the conference, says that he hopes to prove that his invention is an example of a better source of power that can be made available for many uses.

He says that his engine can be used for any purpose: stationary — as in field power generators; or mobile — as in automobiles, boats or small aircraft. "Different sizes of this rotary engine can be produced with minimal changes in components," he said.

"After I get the initial prototype running and have measured actual performance against our calculations, I plan to test the engine in a number of small engine applications. I'll try it in ground power units, small tractors and to power field arc welders," he added.

Statkus is enthusiastic about the future possibilities of his invention. He is already making plans to set up facilities to manufacture his rotary power plant.

"Not long ago, General Motors purchased the patent rights on the Wankel rotary engine, a product of Germany which GM plans to be using in cars by 1975, at a cost of $50 million. The only similarity between my engine and the Wankel," Statkus states, "is that they are both rotaries. But people are beginning to look for better ways to provide power, and I think I've got one."

Asked to list the advantages of his rotary engine, he cited an example of the difference between a conventional engine and his invention. "The 200 horsepower reciprocating engine has about 200 moving parts and uses some of the power it generates to move each of those 200 parts," he explained.

"My engine, on the other hand, has nine moving parts and uses correspondingly less of the power generated to move those parts. It also burns fuel more efficiently. The rotary has less weight, more horsepower for the weight, takes up less volume of space, has less friction and will be less costly to maintain," he added.

Statkus, who is married and has one child, has invested two years and about $2,500 in his rotary engine. "I'm positive it will run," he concludes. "I just hope it will exceed the performance figures we've projected. If it does, some exciting things are going to begin happening."

Volume Increase Expected

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HOUSTONIA — Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co.'s compressor station here will soon handle a larger volume of fuel as the result of a recent discovery of natural gas reserves in Northern Colorado, it was reported recently.

Estimated at one trillion feet, the new gas source has prompted the company to plan construction of 300 miles of large diameter pipeline to connect the new gas reserve to the main transmission system in Kansas. Cost of the construction program is estimated at $60 million.

A spokesman for the gas company's compressor station reported the only change at the plant here would probably be an increased flow of natural gas. Changes or additions in the plant or in personnel are not expected, he said.

Missouri Public Service Co. taps a Cities Service Gas Co., pipeline just outside the Sedalia city limits. Cities Service purchases its fuel from Panhandle Eastern. The new gas discovery, according to Oren Henry, MPSC district manager, will have no effect on the Pettis County area.

Wharton Named To Bank Board

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Dale Wharton was elected to the board of directors of the Bank of Knob Noster recently to fill the vacancy created by the death of the bank's former president, A. C. Bass.

Other board members named at the meeting were Don C. Bollenbach, Weldon Brady, Adrian Harmon, L. P. Lay, J. O. Marshall and H. A. Wimer.

At the stockholder's meeting, Brady was elected president and chairman of the board; Bollenbach, vice-president; Harmon, inactive vice-president; Frank Shepherd, vice-president; Wimer, Doris Cunningham, Gloria Thomas and Wharton, all assistant cashiers.

Wharton is a life-long resident of Knob Noster and graduated from high school here in 1952. He attended Nebraska Wesleyan University, Lincoln, Neb., from 1956-59. He joined the bank's staff in 1970.

The battery tunnel between Brooklyn and New York now carries a 70-cent toll. Before Jan. 5 it was 35 cents.

Painter Came to Art Late

LONDON (AP) — At 76 Costica Mugar is emerging as a recognized, successful painter after coming from the shadow of the gallows and 13 years in a Communist jail.

"It is never too late to learn," said Romanian-born Mugar, pointing to his canvases which he fills with all the light and color that were denied him in his prison cell.

Mugar was arrested in 1949 in Bucharest and charged with being a British secret agent. The court sentenced him to hard labor for life. He was freed in 1962 at the intercession of the British government.

Mugar began his working life as an accountant. "Until I was 72 I had never held a paint brush in my hands," he said.

He staged his first one-man show only 18 months after he started teaching himself to paint. Of the 54 works on display, he sold 18.

Mugar settled in London after his release from prison. His introduction to painting came when he visited a friend in the country. The friend was married to Pamela Fry, daughter of Roger Fry, a leading British painter who died in 1934.

"Her house was full of pictures," he said. "She took me on a conducted tour of them and asked my opinion. When she heard what I had to say she made me promise that I would take up painting."

"I treated it as a joke. A month later she came to my house and asked 'Well, where are the paintings?' When I told her I had none and that I was too old to start she made me give her my word of honor that I would start."

Mugar knew nothing about the subject. Shyly he went to an art shop and told them he wanted painting equipment for a friend. They sold him some tubes of color, a few brushes, a small easel and three small canvas boards.

"My first painting was done completely from memory," he said. "It was a picture of a lake near my grandfather's farm in Romania where I spent my vacations as a child."

When Mugar had finished 10 pictures his wife suggested he should take it up seriously.

"I took my paintings to an art school," he said. "They looked at them and then said they could do nothing for me. I said 'What's the matter—isn't my money good enough for you?' They replied that I was doing well enough on my own and professional tuition would destroy my talent."

He began to visit art galleries studying mainly French Impressionists such as Renoir, Monet, Sisley and Pissarro. He specialized in landscapes which were either bright with flowers or gleaming with snow.

By this time his works were attracting attention. A picture of a cornfield was sold for $192.

Mugar's paintings express the freshness and purity of vision of a man experiencing each day the joy of seeing the world anew after years of darkness. The paintings based on his childhood memory of places, such as Romanian peasants dancing in a spring meadow, have a childlike innocence uncluttered by elements of professional technique.
